Kuomingtang Leaders Scored By Southern Chiefs' Manifesto

SECRECY EXPOSED

Alleged Understandings Between Wang And Tang Published

REJECTS WANG

Will Only Parley With Acceptable Man From Non-Anfu Party

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, June 19.—The following is the full text of the manifesto, issued by the Canton Government, a summary of which was telegraphed by Reuter's Hongkong correspondent today.

"It is three years now, since the Southwestern Provinces declared their independence and the Navy came over to join hands with them. During these three years, China has been suffering from a civil strife, involving great loss of life, property and wealth. And all this has been done for the sake of defending the Constitution and saving the country.

"The Constitution must be defended because Tuan Chi-jui is destroying it: the country must be saved because the Anfuites, of whom Tuan Chi-jui is the principal leader, are bartering away its sovereign rights. Therefore, there is no hope of success in defending the Constitution, unless Tuan Chi-jui is put out of power; and no hope of success in saving the country, unless the Anfu Party is dissolved. Accordingly, the Southwestern Provinces and the Navy seceded from the Peking Government and established an independent Government in Canton under the title of "The Military Government of the Republic of China" in order to achieve their patriotic aim of defending the Constitution and saving the country.

DECEIVES WORLD

"But replying upon the help that they have secured from an outside state, Tuan Chi-jui and his Anfuites are determined to crush the Southwestern Provinces by superior military force. This is why they are putting every obstacle in the way of peace; though, in order to deceive the world, their lips are full of peace talks.

"The one fact that Wang Yi-tang, speaker of the illegal Anfuite parliament in Peking, was appointed chief peace delegate for the North, in place of Chu Chi-chien, after peace negotiations had already been opened for more than four months, sufficiently shows that Tuan Chi-jui and his Anfuites have no desire for peace but are still as sanguine as ever for war.

"Now, among those crying against Tuan Chi-jui and his Anfuites, no one has cried louder and more bitterly than Sun Yat-sen. Among those refusing to recognise Wang Yi-tang as chief peace delegate for the North and calling for his removal, no one seems to have taken a firmer attitude than Tang Shao-yi.

"But both Sun Yat-sen and Tang Shao-yi have now suddenly changed their minds and assumed a very different attitude. Sun has allied himself with Tuan Chi-jui and is doing his utmost to flatter him: Tang Shao-yi has joined hands with Wang Yi-tang and is eager to do him homage.

ATTITUDE EXPECTED

"To those who look at Sun and Tang when they are wearing their masks, this news must appear surprising and startling. But by us, who know these two men well, in their naked form, such an attitude on their part has, for some time past, been expected.

"Between Tuan Chi-jui and Wang Yi-tang on the one side, and Sun Yat-sen and Tang Shao-yi on the other, secret agents have, during the past six months, frequently gone forward and backward. Personal views have been exchanged and conditions, conducive to the private interest of both sides, have been agreed upon, which have more than once leaked out through the native press in Peking, Tientsin, Shanghai and Hongkong.

"According to these conditions, the present President Hsu Shih-chang is to quit and Tuan Chi-jui to be elected to fill his place: Wang Yi-tang to be Premier: Tang Shao-yi to be Minister of

Rotary Club Will Be Host To Visitors At Tiffin; Dance At Carlton

The University of California Glee Club will play a preliminary engagement of one night here tonight at the Olympic theater and a full day's engagement will be played in the week of July 17-23 when the university men come back from a trip to Manila on which they sail tomorrow on the Pacific Mail liner Colombia. All of the members of the Glee Club had arrived in Shanghai yesterday afternoon.

The visitors are to be entertained at tiffin today by the Shanghai Rotary Club and in the afternoon a tea dance is being given for them at 5 o'clock at the Carlton Cafe.

Various arrangements to extend welcome to the visitors and provide for their entertainment were discussed yesterday afternoon at a meeting at the Carlton of Californians resident in Shanghai. Committees to take in hand preparations for the forthcoming stay of the visitors were appointed.

Besides the University of California jazz band, one of the big features of the Glee Club organisation, its membership also, as has been announced, includes a baseball team with playing ability of the first order and this aggregation will cross bats with the Shanghai club in a series on the occasion of the visit in July.

Arrangements Being Made To Give Royal Welcome To Them On Return

Details of tonight's program, which appear on this page, are full of promise and advance notices have been received which speak in unmeasured terms of praise of the talents of the musicians and songsters.

Lawnmowers, hatchets, and gimlets are all musical instruments to Frank Morgan, musical carpenter, with the University of California Glee Club. Morgan is an accomplished violinist, he never appears on the Glee Club program with his fiddle and bow, but chooses his solo instrument from his carpenters' toolbox instead.

Morgan has made a great hit with his "sawdust melodies" played on a common, garden-variety saw. With no other accessory than an old-tobacco-smelling briar pipe, Morgan coaxes the most plaintive tones imaginable from his rusty saw. In fact, during the Glee Club's engagement in the Hawaiian Islands, Morgan played a duet with a native steel guitar expert, and the difference between the tones of the guitar and the saw was undistinguishable.

Men Prominent In American Commercial World Are Named Officers

Messrs. Gaston, Williams and Wigmore announce that Mr. Henry S. Kimball, until recently President of the Remington Arms Union Metallic Cartridge Company, and Mr. W. M. St. John, formerly of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, have joined the firm. Mr. Kimball has taken a seat as vice-president of the organisation and Mr. St. John is treasurer.

Both men are widely known in financial circles in America and their association with the firm, which has extensive dealings in this part of the world, will be looked upon by Wall Street and other money centers as indicating a strong future for the company.

Mr. Kimball is a graduate of the American Naval Academy, started at the bottom with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company and in six years worked his way to a superintendency and was president of the American Zinc Lead Smelting Company before joining the Remington forces.

Mr. St. John, who has been connected with the leading American banks since he was 16 years of age, has had a rapid rise in his chosen profession. Although only 35 years of age Mr. St. John is acknowledged as a leader in the financial world because of his policy of "constructive curiosity."

During the war he was "borrowed" from the National Bank of Commerce by the Federal Reserve Bank for Liberty Loan work and eventually was induced to become a regular member of the Federal Bank staff. He was in that position when he decided to join Gaston, Williams and Wigmore.

GERMANY SENDS NOTE OF REGRET FOR SUB VICTIMS

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, June 22.—Following on the incident at the International Seamen's Conference at Genoa, which culminated in the resignation of a German delegate, the latter has been authorised by his Government to make the following declaration:

"Germans deplore the great numbers of victims of the submarine war, which Germany, in her distress and in order to defend herself against the blockade, had to undertake, without making the slightest protest on the subject. Germany is pledged by an Annex to Article 224 of the Peace Treaty to make reparation for all damage, caused by the war on the sea, to the Allied and Associated Powers and their dependents."

Peking Announces Note Was Sent Out Through A Misunderstanding

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 22.—In connection with the statement of the position taken up by China in matters arising out of the Anglo-Japanese alliance which was handed out by the Waichiaopu to Reuter for publication on June 6, Reuter is now asked by the Waichiaopu to announce that the statement was "given out through a misunderstanding, was inaccurate and was not authorised for publication."

For the information of those unfamiliar with the statement above referred to the article, as printed in THE CHINA PRESS of June 7, is reproduced herewith:

Peking, June 6.—The Foreign Office has handed to Reuter's Agency the following statement of the position China has taken up in matters arising out of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance:

"Three months ago the attention of the Chinese Government was drawn to statements appearing in the world's press regarding the renewal or termination of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

"Inasmuch as an important element in the text of both of the 1905 and 1911 agreements was section B of the Preamble which treated of matters affecting China's international standing and international relations without the prior assent of China having been obtained, and inasmuch as public opinion throughout the Republic had long shown deep resentment at this condition of affairs, the Government decided that the time has arrived to address representations to the British Government.

INQUIRY ORDERED

"Instructions were consequently sent to the Chinese Minister in

105 BILLION MARKS GERMANY'S DEBT FOR REPARATIONS

Powers Permit 35 Years To Pay Debt; Must Disarm

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 21.—The Times understands that the Hythe Conference has requested the French Government to draft a firm note to Germany, with regard to disarmament.

Marshal Foch and Field-Marshal Sir Henry Wilson dissented from Mr. Lloyd George's views with regard to the granting of a free hand to Greece in Anatolia against the Turkish Nationalists as they consider that it is by no means certain that the Greek operations would be successful.

The Conference decided that Germany should be required to pay reparations in the form of annuities, extensible in accordance with her capacity. The minimum annuity contemplated is 3,000,000,000 Marks Gold for 35 years.

Marshal Foch and Field-Marshal Sir Henry Wilson have approved the text of the Allied notification to the German Government regarding disarmament, destruction of material and the reduction of the army as soon as possible to the numbers prescribed in the Treaty of Versailles, which have up to the present either not been carried out at all or only partially carried out by Germany.

Later.—With regard to reparations, the Conference has agreed upon the principle that the annual minimum payment by Germany shall be three thousand million gold marks, or nominally £150,000,000.

THE FIVE NATIONS

The financial experts were charged with the preparation of the text, which has been agreed upon for presentation to the evening conference. Similarly the military experts are preparing the draft of a notification to Germany regarding disarmament, both in effectives and material.

CHANG TSO-LIN HAS HUGE ANTI-ANFU PROGRAM

HSU AGREES TO PLANS

Will Replace Defeated Anfu Tuchun Of Hunan

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 23.—General Chang Tso-lin's visit to Paotingfu [illegible] occasion of an important [illegible] with General Chang Tso-lin is in full agreement with the President to secure the adoption of a definite program, the main points of which are: (1) the return to office of the Premier, Chin Yung-peng with full liberty to reconstruct the Cabinet without interference from any party; (2) peace negotiations with the whole of the South but not with any section: (3) the replacing of General Chang Ching-yao by an official of good prestige: (4) not to regard the Hunan incident as an act of war but to request the South immediately to withdraw its troops from Hunan.

General Chang Tso-lin's and General Tsao Kun's troops have occupied important points on the Peking-Tientsin Railway.

General Wu Kuang-hsin, following the apprehensive policy which the Anfu Club have been displaying recently, has for the third time submitted his resignation as High Commissioner in Hupeh and Hunan.

The dissolution of the Peking Parliament, the dismissal of Little Hsu, Ni Shih-chung and the three extreme Anfu Ministers, the appointment of Chang Hsun, the monarchist, to succeed Ni and the calling of a national convention to settle the internal dispute are among the aims of Chang Tso-lin, war lord of Fengtien and erstwhile bandit, in breaking the Anfu hold in Peking, according to friends of the Mukden chief.

Chang has the support of Old Hsu, Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu in the Northern provinces and Lu Yung-ting of the South in his scheme.

A note of warning has already been addressed to the Anfu legislature by Chang, threatening its dissolution unless it approves the demand to retire Little Hsu, Ni, Tseng Yu-tsing, Chu Shen and Li Shih-hao. It is understood that Premier Chin will not resume his office until the Anfuites are removed.

FIGHTING WAY OUT, EXCUSE OF GOB FOR SHOTS

Thought Crowd Of Strikers Was Threatening Mob, Declares Sailor

WOMEN CHARGE SQUEEZE

Pootung Workers Return To Work When Told Of Investigation

Emiliano Tutay, a Filipino sailor, from the American destroyer Rizal, who is charged with shooting and slightly wounding a Chinese in connection with the cotton mill strike, is to be given a hearing shortly before the American consular court. Tutay is being detained and his hearing will probably not take place until his ship returns from a trip up the river.

In an unofficial statement the Filipino asserted that the shooting was the result of his belief that he and two companions were being attacked by a bloodthirsty mob of Chinese. The sailors were engaged in a dispute with ricsha coolies over a fare to be paid when suddenly they found themselves surrounded by a crowd of several hundred persons. They knew nothing of the strike and were not aware that the mob was made up of curiosity seekers from among the idle workers.

Believing themselves to be in peril, the sailor said, the trio decided to fight their way out. Tutay, it is alleged drew a pistol and commenced firing. One of the Chinese was wounded in the hand.

POOTUNG AFFECTED

With about 4,000 employes of [illegible] Japanese cotton mills in the Pootung district on strike the local labor situation was further aggravated yesterday when 300 female workers at the Pootung plant of the British American Tobacco company refused to resume their tasks and called, in a body, at the offices of the corporation in Museum Road to present their grievances. The women charged that a foreman at the plant was "squeezing" part of their pay.

Management of the company promised the women that an investigation would be made. If the charges are sustained the foreman is to be dealt with accordingly.

Upon receiving these promises the women returned to Pootung and resumed their duties.

JAPANESE AND KOREANS FIGHT FIERCE BATTLE

Independence Army Claims To Have Killed 120 Nipponese

Despatches from the Kwang Chung district in Manchuria to local headquarters of the Korean Provisional Government yesterday stated that 120 Japanese had been slain in a battle and that the fighting is still continuing. The clash came in a wooded spot near Fung Woo Tung village where a band of armed Koreans was entrenched and took the invaders by surprise.

News of the armed clash is considered significant as it has been only recently that the Koreans have abandoned their policy of "peaceful revolt" and have taken up arms. It is believed by the Korean leaders here that the clash marks the beginning of a strenuous campaign against Japanese in Northern Korea.

U.S. Buys 1,700,000 Ounces Of Silver

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, June 22.—The Director of the Mint announces that a further 1,700,000 ounces of silver have been purchased under the provisions of the Pittman Act, at $1 an ounce, for delivery at Philadelphia and San Francisco. This makes a total of 3,200,000 ounces acquired by the Government under the Act this month.

Treasury officials estimate that altogether, 207,000,000 ounces must be purchased. It is not expected that the Pittman Act will cause an increase of prices, because there is but little demand for more silver.

Arnold Announces Body Will Co-operate With British

A resolution to take no action in connection with the requests of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and the Piece Goods Guild to cancel recent piece goods contracts and extend the old ones was passed by the British Chamber of Commerce at a special meeting yesterday at the Palace Hotel. The resolution further refuses to associate itself with any movement which threatens the sanctity of the written contract.

No action has yet been taken by the American Chamber of Commerce in connection with the import goods crisis. Mr. H. H. Arnold, newly elected president of the Chamber and head of the committee investigating the situation, said last night concerning the future progress of the movement: "We hope to be able to cooperate in the matter with the British Chamber of Commerce. No further statement can be made at this time."

THE RESOLUTION

The full text of the resolution passed by the British Chamber of Commerce was as follows:

"That the British Chamber of Commerce while sympathising with Chinese merchants in the losses with which they are faced, as described in the letters received from the Piece Goods Guild and the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce, is of opinion that the matter is one in which as a body it can take no effective action: further, that this Chamber declines to associate itself with any movement which threatens the sanctity of the written contract."

COMMITTEE NAMED

After passing the resolution, the British chamber appointed a special committee to consider the local aspects of the matter with a view, if necessary, to taking action locally.

The committee of the Shanghai Stock Exchange has decided in view of the exchange situation to revert to the day of the June Settlement to June 29 as originally advertised.

ISSUE STATEMENT

The newly inaugurated Importers Exchange Maintenance Association consisting of Chinese importers of piece goods, hardware, provisions, chemicals and woollen goods yesterday issued a lengthy statement for the perusal of the foreign merchants at Shanghai, urging immediate action in saving the local exchange situation.

"There is no time for filibustering over customary practice or legal points, because by the time you get over the argument, the situation would be so grave that no solution can be effected even when you wanted to."

The message said if no provisions are made for the importers to bridge over the crisis, the Chinese will be forced to go out of business and the foreign merchants will be effected by them.

MANCHESTER'S ACTION

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 20.—There is some uneasiness on the Manchester Royal Exchange as the result of cables stating that the Piece Goods Association of Shanghai suggests that merchants and manufacturers in Lancashire should cancel contracts, owing to the fall in silver making it impossible to sell goods at a profit.

Manchester firms are determined to act together and refuse to entertain the suggestion. It is pointed out that dealers in Shanghai made immense profits last year when exchange was favorable to them and that now the position is reversed they should be willing to bear their share of the losses.

MISS FRIED IS PRAISED FOR HER WORK IN ORIENT

Girl Who Brought Motion Picture Players Here Now In States

Miss Eleanor Fried, who won many friends in Shanghai when she came out here a few months ago as financial manager for the Universal Film Manufacturing Company players headed by Miss Marie Walcamp, has returned to Universal City, California, and has won much attention for her achievement in taking a great troupe half way around the world and back again. The latest issue of the Universal Bulletin has this to say of Miss Fried:

"One of the biggest jobs ever entrusted to a young woman in the film industry was the business management of the Universal expedition to the Orient, to film "The Dragon's Net," a serial starring Marie Walcamp.

"Carl Laemmle placed Eleanor Fried in charge of the business affairs of the expedition, and on the return of the party recently the chief executive of the Big U congratulated the young girl upon the capable manner in which she conducted the affairs of the trip.

"The company was gone nearly eight months, during which time Miss Fried handled about $200,000 of the company's funds and traveled over 40,000 miles. Among the principal Far East cities visited, and where scenes were filmed, were Yokohama, Tokio, Kioto, Kobe, Nankow, the Great Wall of China, Nara, Nagasaki, Shanghai, Peking, Tientsin Manila, Iloilo, Cebu, Jolo, Mindanoa and Honolulu."

The 'Belles' Of St. Mary's

The Belles of St. Mary's College, Jessfield, are going to give a couple of performances of a pantomime entitled "Ali Baba" and all in English. The production is in the hands of Miss Pott, Miss Graves and Miss Cooper.

Thanks to the kind invitation this trio of talented ladies, I have been allowed to have a "look-see" at some of the rehearsals at the Olympic.

The theater named is to give a home to "Ali Baba" on Friday and again on Monday. "Ali" will entertain tomorrow at 8 o'clock in the evening and on Monday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. "Ali" and his ("Ali" is really a she) confederates will sing and dance and talk; and will not only put the robber chief to rout but will also conquer the hearts of the audience.

Candidly, I was really surprised at what these "belles" of St. Mary's were able to do on the stage.

I was still under the impression that Chinese ladies were the occupiers of a back seat, but it proved nothing of the sort.

Young China is training its men to be up-to-date and so the "belles" of St. Mary's are going to be just as much up to date; so that they will make real helpmeets for their future companions in life's journey

Take the kiddies along to see Chinese girls play an English panto. They will enjoy it and follow it as well.

Some of the dancing is as airy and dainty as you could expect to see anywhere.

Youth Is Killed When He Runs In Front Of Motor

A Chinese youth died at St. Luke's hospital Tuesday afternoon after having been run down by a motor car in the service of the Shanghai Municipal Police and an inquest yesterday at the Mixed Court found that the driver, C. P. C. 1105 was blameless. The inquest was conducted by British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Tsang.

An investigation of the accident, which occurred at North Shanse and North Soochow Roads, showed that the boy had dashed directly in front of the motor car and that the driver had no opportunity to prevent the injury to the youth.

The court recommended that the Municipal Council allot $100 compensation to the relatives of the victim.

Bending Efforts Now On Ukraine Front; Finland Sends Envoy

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 21.—A telegram from Warsaw states that, having re-established the situation in the North, where they hold the whole line of the Beresina, the main effort of the Poles has been transferred to the Ukrainian front.

The Poles engaged the Bolsheviks at the confluence of the Pripet and the Dniper and destroyed two Soviet regiments. This operation freed the territory between the Dnieper and the Beresina and has given the Poles complete freedom of action to the south of the Pripet, where they are threatening the Bolshevik rear.

It is anticipated that Budienny's Red Army will be forced to fall back on the Dnieper. Everything points to a vigorous counter-offensive by Marshal Pilsudski's armies, which are being quickly regrouped in the Ukraine.

Tailor Loses Suit Against R. W. McCabe In British Court

Judgment For Defendant Is Rendered On Claim For $400

Judgment for defendant was hand down yesterday in the British Supreme Court before Mr. G. W. King on the claim for $400 against Mr. R. W. MacCabe by M. Polejack, ladies' tailor. The claim was for alleged wrongful dismissal and wages said to be due from defendant, who was formally proprietor of La Vogue.

Plaintiff asserted that he and his wife were engaged by defendant at a joint salary of $250 per month as designer and saleswoman respectively. He was told at the end of the month that his salary would be reduced to $150 and when he refused to accept the money, he was given a month's notice to leave the employment. Later he was discharged.

Defendant stated that La Vogue was a one department store and Mme. Larchenko was the sole manageress. On her representations he agreed that plaintiff and his wife could have a trial. They had the appearance of refugees. Witness had feelings of sorrow and sympathy for them and was anxious to give them some work if they could carry it out. He made plaintiff advances of at least $150 in the first month.

Before the end of the month, Mme. Larchenko reported that plaintiff's work was by no means what had been hoped for and his attitude was far from satisfactory. He seemed to think he was manager, instead of only a superior tailor. She decided to reduce his pay, but this plaintiff would not agree to and so was given notice. On 6th September, witness was called up, because of plaintiff's insulting behavior in the store and thereupon dismissed him.

Cross-examined: He believed plaintiff was offered a percentage of profits when his salary was reduced, the idea being to get him to take more interest in his work. Witness did not believe in starvation wages.

Answering the Court, witness said that he dismissed plaintiff because he insulted two foreign ladies. Life would have been impossible in the store under those conditions. Also, he had been disobedient to Mme. Larchenko. "I felt," said Mr. MacCabe, "that this man, having had a knock to his self-pride by being told that his services would not be required at the end of the month, determined to make himself as unpleasant as possible and to take advantage of these two women."

The case was dismissed, plaintiff to pay $25 costs.

Remnants Of Canton Regime Rap 'Big Four'

reign Affairs; Tang Chi-yao to Inspector-General for the three vinces of Yunnan, Szechuen d Kweichow; Wu Ting-fang's , Wu Chao-chu, to be Minister Washington; while Sun Yat- is to receive eight hundred usand dollars per annum to y abroad and to keep quiet."

"These facts account for the den change of attitude on the rt of Sun Yat-sen and Tang o-yi and their adherents. And se facts also account for the son why, about five month ago, g Shao-yi wired to Canton, gesting that the Military Gov- ment should waive its demand the publication of all the ret treaties which Tuan Chi- and his Anfuites had made h Japan, and that only one g should be demanded as a dition for the resumption of otiations for peace with the rthern peace delegates; name- the cancellation of the Military ct.

NTON REJECTS WANG

"But the Military Government s not satisfied with this one dition. It wanted one more; mely, the recall of the Anfuite, ng Yi-tang, and the appoint- nt of a more acceptable person take his place as chief peace egate for the North.

"This additional condition, wever, was offensive to both party represented by Wang tang and the party represented Tang Shao-yi, as it practically ounted to the nullification of secret arrangement already me to between them; for, if ng Yi-tang be removed and a w man appointed in his place, new man might be some one o does not belong to the Anfu rty. And in that case he would st likely refuse to abide by the ret conditions above referred

"After this, Sun Yat-sen, Tang ao-yi and Wu Ting-fang were termined to usurp the power of Military Government, to able them to carry out the ret arrangement they had made th the Anfuites. But the power the Military Government could be usurped unless Tsen Chun- uan, Lu Yung-ting, Lin Pao-yi d Mo Yung-hsin were over- rown.

"Therefore, they sent their ret agents, Kuo Tung and ng Nai-chang, to Yunnan to ke arrangements with Tang i-yao to have their scheme rried out; and Tang Chi-yao dily consented to co-operate th them because he was so eased with the idea that he had eady long cherished, that he s to be made Inspector-General the three provinces of Yun- n, Szechuen and Kweichow.

VO LI'S FIGHT

"At that moment there were o divisions of Yunnan troops in wangtung under the command General Li Kan-yuen; who, ough being a native of Yunnan, s loyal to the Military Govern- ent.

"Fearing less General Li Kan- en would not obey orders, if led upon to attack the Kwangsi oops in Kwangtung, who were pporting the Military Govern- ent, General Tang Chi-yao ued a mandate, removing Gen- al Li Kan-yuen from his com- andership and putting General Lieh-chun in command of the unnan troops.

"But General Li Kan-yuen re- sed to hand over his command General Li Lieh-chun. Gen- al Li Lieh-chun thereupon de- ared war upon General Li Kan- en, and fighting between them llowed; in which General Li eh-chun was defeated and would rtainly have lost his life, d not Tsen Chun-hsuan gone the scene of battle in Shaochow protect him and bring him fely back to Canton.

"Owing to the complete failure their plot, and fearing of its ing discovered by the Military overnment at any moment, Wu ng-fang and his son, Wu Chao- u, secretly quitted Canton dur- g the absence of Tsen Chun- uan in Shaochow, carrying away ith them all the public funds in u Ting-fang's trust, as Acting inister of Finance in the Military overnment.

"For the same reason, Tang hao-yi sent word to those mem- ers of the old Parliament who ere siding with him to go to hanghai, believing that, with the cession of Wu Ting-fang and ese members of the old Parlia- ent, the Military Government ould come to an end.

"But, to their great disappoint- ment, with the single exception of Yunnan, all the provinces in the Southwest remain loyal to the Military Government and still obey its mandates.

MANIFESTO DECEITFUL

"But in order to deceive the world and to cover their own crimes, Sun Yat-sen, Tang Shao-yi, Wu Ting-fang and Tang Chi-yao recently issued a manifesto in which they praise themselves and lay every crime at the door of the Military Government; in which they still claim to be administrative directors; though, with the only exception of Tang Chi-yao, the positions of Sun Yat-sen, Wu Ting-fang and Tang Shao-yi as administrative directors in the Military Government, were cancelled by the old Parliament, assembled in extraordinary session on May 4, 1920; in which they attack the Military Government on the "so-called five articles," though these five articles were suggested and offered to the Military Government for consideration by a third and neutral party, who is anxious to see the restoration of peace; in which they declare that 'poppy is widely cultivated' in the South-West, though as a matter of fact, poppy is widely and densely cultivated only in the province of Yunnan, which is governed by Tang Chi-yao, one of the four signatories to the manifesto above referred to; in which they assert that 'gambling dens are in evidence in every street,' though as known to every Cantonese, gambling, which was abolished by Tsen Chun-hsuan in the year 1904 when he was Viceroy of Kwangtung and Kwangsi, was re-established in Kwangtung during Sun Yat-sen's tenure of office as self-appointed 'Generalissimo' in Canton, previous to his departure in shame and disgrace, after he had failed to take the city by bombardment for a whole night; in which they claim themselves to be the Military Government, though the only province in the South-West that is supposed to be on their side is Yunnan; and in which they claim that 'the provinces of Yunnan, Szechuen and Kweichow still follow the lead of Tang Chi-yao,' though recent events show that, on account of Tang Chi-yao's disloyalty to the Military Government, and of his latest intrigues against Szechuen, his most intimate friend, General Ku Pin-chen, Commander-in-Chief of the Yunnan troops in Szechuen, has sent out a circular telegram from Suifu in Szechuen, denouncing Tang Chi-yao's inconsistent and selfish conduct and declaring that he has severed all connections with Tang Chi-yao. All this is an accurate statement of facts, which is capable of bearing investigation.

TANG DISMISSED

"Now, while the Military Government is anxious for the restoration of peace, it hesitates to negotiate peace with any Anfuite like Wang Yi-tang, for it is convinced that if peace is made through such an Anfuite, the Anfu influence cannot be got rid of, or reduced to any satisfactory point.

"But, if the Anfu influence is allowed to remain, neither can the Constitution be defended nor can the country be saved from destruction.

"Therefore, the Military Government has dismissed Tang Shao-yi from his position of Chief Peace Delegate for the South and has declared that any arrangement secretly made between him and the Anfuite, Wang Yi-tang, shall have no effect; and has appointed Wen Tsung-yao to the position of Chief Peace Delegate, who will open negotiations for peace with the North, as soon as the Peking Government recalls Wang Yi-tang and appoints an acceptable person to be its Chief Peace Delegate.

"This manifesto is issued and circulated to give the world a true description of the situation in China, and to correct the false statement of Sun Yat-sen, Tang Shao-yi, Wu Ting-fang and Tang Chi-yao, in the manifesto that they issued and circulated on the 3rd of June 1920.

The Prince suggested that British ex-officers should try Siam. He pointed out that thousands of Germans had been deported from Siam, never to return, and emphasised the enormous size of the rice industry and the vastness of openings for transport and railways.

Dealers Trying To Sell At Low Rate

(Reuter's Service)

New York, June 21.—During the past week there has been a determined attempt in many parts of the country to sell goods at lower prices. The manufacturers are pressed for money and are rather alarmed by the accumulation of stocks.

They have taken great halls and have been offering good suits of clothes and shoes at prices 50 percent below those a week ago. In many cases, the big department stores and retailers have made similar reductions.

Americans Worst Sufferers On Seaman's Bill

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 21.—A leading London shipowner, interviewed by a representative of the press with regard to a possible increase of shipping competition from America, said that, if American legislation excludes our ships from American ports, American exporters would be the worst sufferers.

American shipping could not be run as cheaply as British on account of high wages and inefficient handling owing to want of experience.

The shipowner expressed the conviction that British shipowners need not be seriously perturbed at "a combination of inexperience, ashore and afloat, under legislative shelter, which will not have the approval of the majority of business interests."

Asiatic Silks In Slump, British Wire

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 21.—The Daily Telegraph's Macclesfield correspondent reports that there has been a serious slump in the silk industry, especially in Asiatic silks. Imports of made-up silks already exceed the figures for 1913.

The orders, received in Macclesfield during the last two months, are insufficient to keep the mills running. Many mills in the fancy trade are already working only half time.

PEACE ENVOYS OPEN CAUCUS AT BOULOGNE

Fix Friday As Date For Considering Turkey's World-Position

(Reuter's Service)

Boulogne-sur-Mer, June 22.—The following official communique is published today regarding the proceedings of the Boulogne Conference, which opened yesterday:

The Turkish question was considered and it was decided to insist on the date, June 26, originally fixed, for the presentation of Turkey's reply to the peace terms.

The Conference also approved the military measures, concerted by Marshal Foch and Field-Marshal Sir Henry Wilson to meet the situation in the district of Constantinople and the Straits.

It was decided to summon to Spa, Greek, Polish, Portuguese, Rumanian, Czecho-Slovak and Jugo-Slav delegates in order to discuss with the Allies any question directly concerning them, which might be brought up in the course of the conference.

DISCUSS GREEK AID

London, June 21.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, replying to a request for a statement with regard to the reported acceptance of military aid from Greece to deal with the Turkish Nationalists, Mr. Bonar Law said that the matter was at present being discussed at Boulogne. Greece was one of the Allies and Greek troops would be used where necessary, like others of the nations concerned, by general agreement with the Allies, acting on the advice of their military advisers.

Replying to a question, Mr Bonar Law said that the Government had reason to believe that the British naval officers and men captured at Baku by the Bolshevists had not been properly treated. The Government were taking all possible steps in the matter. Mr. Bonar Law emphasised that M. Krassin has been informed that the unconditional release of all British prisoners must precede any result of the present negotiations.

BRITISH EMBARK

Malta, June 20.—The 2nd Battalion of the Essex Regiment is under orders to leave as soon as possible. The light cruiser, Cardiff, is ready to embark the battalion for transport to Constantinople.

All available destroyers in the port are likewise sailing for the East tomorrow and the cruiser Blenheim will follow later.

All the ships of the Fourth and First Battle Squadrons are already in the Eastern Mediterranean, except H.M.S. Centurion. The battleship, Ceres, is now on her way. Apparently the entire Mediterranean Fleet is concentrating near the Middle East.

CHANG TSO-LIN HAS HUGE ANTI-ANFU PROGRAM

The proposed appointment of Chang Hsun gives the movement of the Fengtien Tuchun a monarchial aspect which popular opinion cannot approve. Chang argues however, that he is sent down to oust Ni, his former protege. If some one else is sent, Ni is sure to take up arms. Ni has some 40,000 troops, under his command normally, many of whom used to be under Chang.

Just to what extent Chang Tso-lin will succeed only time can tell. From all present indications, he is determined to carry out his scheme.

PEKING SURROUNDED

Besides forming an invisible military cordon round Peking with his Fengtien crack fighters in civilian clothes, the Kinhan line is being dotted with camps of the forces of Wu Pei-fu. Three battalions of Wu's army are now in Changsingtien at the throat of the capital.

With all the points in his favor Chang Tso-lin is today able to dictate to the Anfu Club, to which no one else has yet succeeded.

Tokio Student Is Arrested For Sale Of Japanese Maps

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 23.—The police announce the arrest of a student of British law at the Imperial University of Tokio, the second arrest in connection with the alleged sale of maps to a foreign embassy.

According to the Nichi-Nichi, the first to be arrested was a Japanese named Oyama, who is charged with stealing two hundred and fifty sheets of Siberian official maps from the Russian survey department, when the Japanese occupied Habarovsk.

Oyama is alleged to have brought these maps to Tokio and disposed of them to a certain embassy through a university student named Sentaro Sekizawa; who, it is stated, possesses a fair knowledge of English

SAYS STATEMENT ON ALLIANCE WAS NOT AUTHORISED

London to make formal inquiries regarding the reports appearing in the press and to point out that while obviously the international arrangements of other Powers did not in the ordinary course of events concern others than the high Contracting Parties, the treatment of China merely as a territorial entity in the written text of any such agreements would no longer be tolerated by the public opinion of the country and would indeed be viewed by all as an unfriendly act.

"To these first inquires China received the following verbal reply: first that the question of the renewal or termination of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance had not yet come up for consideration; secondly, that inasmuch as the successive agreements had been couched in the same language, it would naturally follow that if the Alliance were renewed it must follow the same lines.

THE MEMORANDUM

"In consequence of this reply a memorandum was prepared analysing the three successive Alliance instruments and establishing clearly: (a) that the original instrument of 1902 was radically different from the 1905 agreement in that the independence of Korea was specifically guaranteed in the first; (b) that the second agreement of 1905 far from being identical included India for the first time within its scope, whilst Korea was relegated to a subordinate position and clearly earmarked for annexation; (c) that the third agreement introduced into the preamble the definite statement having in view the important changes which have taken place in the situation, etc., and then definitely dropped all reference in the numbered articles to either Korea or the Indian frontier, because act to which Russia's assent had been obtained had made mutual pledger regarding these matters superfluous.

CHINA DISTRUSTS

"In view, then, of the fact that beneath the framework of what is on the surface a self-denying ordinance, vital and far-reaching changes have acquired the sanction of the high contracting parties, Chinese opinion is not unnaturally distrustful of any renewal of this agreement, all men holding that China has suffered enough from its operation during the world war in the matter of Shantung.

"Furthermore, as the formal ratification of the Austrian treaty has made China a member of the League of Nations, which she assumes was created in good faith, she is advised that a contract regarding her affairs between other members of the League cannot be entered into without her prior consent has been obtained. Article 10 being a sufficient guarantee that her territorial integrity will be respected.

"So far China has not received from Britain a reply to her memorandum. She is anxious for that reply so that she may address an identical note to Japan and establish definitely the national attitude on a question vital to the peace and prosperity of her people."

BEING CONSIDERED

London, June 4.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, Mr. Cecil Harmsworth, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in reply to a question, stated that the future of the Anglo-Japanese alliance was being considered but the time for a decision on the subject had not yet arrived.

Wedding

MONTGOMERY-COURTENEY

Miss Betty Montgomery and Lieut. Frank J. Courteney, both of whom are prominent figures in the social world of the American community, were married at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at St. Joseph's Church. Following the ceremony, which was witnessed by a large attendance at the church, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of Commander E. H. Cope after which a reception took place there in the afternoon. Lieutenant and Mrs. Courteney left last night for Kuling on their honeymoon.

Mrs. Courteney is a daughter of the state of Kentucky and came to the Far East from her home city of Ashland. Her father, Mr. J. G. Montgomery, is now in San Francisco. Lieutenant Courteney is of Syracuse, New York and has made a wide circle of friends in the two years of service he has seen in the Navy in Far Eastern waters. He is now an officer on the gunboat Elcano.

With the organ music preceding the ceremony the Wedding March was played by Mr. Fred Lynch, and probably for the first time, on the saxophone, the dulcet tones of which blended most pleasingly with those of the organ.

The bridal procession was preceded by a trio of dainty flower girls, the little Misses Cunningham. The bride was attired charmingly in a gown of white charmeuse with net overdrape and carried a bouquet of bride's roses and carnations. Her sister, Miss Helen Montgomery, was maid of honor and the five bridesmaids were the Misses Wilkinson, Sternberg, Stites, Miller and Erickson. Commander Cope gave the bride away and Lieut. Willis Persifield of the U. S. S. Samar acted as best man. The ushers were Lieut. Mackey Lewis, Lieut. Frank L. Kelly, Lieut. Gosling, Mr. Richard Hutchinson and Mr Philip Cravat.

Dancing in the flag draped rooms of Commander Cope's residence was a feature of the afternoon reception and for this a merged orchestra of artists of the Parisien and Astor House orchestras was brought together by Mr. A. B. Cody.

GLEE CLUB TEAM WILL PLAY BALL ON RETURN HERE

Californians Out Of Condition Now And Must Train

ON WAY TO MANILA

Tientsin Players Also Expected To Take On Visitors

The baseball committee has been working on the question of a game with the Glee Club from the land of fruit and sunshine but without success. The boys pleaded lack of playing condition due to their long ocean trip and felt that they would rather wait until their return from Manila, after which time, some baseball worth looking at would be dished out. They have some pretty likely looking material, judging from the way a few of them threw the ball around, in a brief practice yesterday afternoon at the Race Course.

The tentative arrangements call for a series on the Glee Club's return after fulfilling an engagement at Manila. This series will take place the week of July 17-23 and it is expected that a stirring period of baseball will liven up the followers of the sport here.

There will certainly be one fast Navy team here if not more, and in addition, inducements will be offered the Filipino Infantry Team to make the trip. Without getting too enthusiastic about the matter, there is a strong probability of the Tientsin players wanting to be put on the map. All in all things point to a glorious time along about the middle of next month.

The wires are still being kept hot in connection with the destroyer division team that is to make the trip to Shanghai for the annual fixture on Independence Day, this the biggest day of the year for Shanghai Yanks, would not be a success if there was no ball game.

However there will be a Navy team here to play for the Cup on the Fourth. The American Consul has been approached for assistance in the matter and this is insurance enough, for there are few more loyal fans than Mr. Cunningham. The Committee can always be assured of his support and with this information the most skeptical can lay back with the comforting knowledge that providing "Jupe" Pluvius, does not "crab" the game by raining; a regular old time celebration will take place at the Race Course, on the "large" Day.

MRS. PEARSON IS TENNIS CHAMP; WINS EASILY

With the exception of the first two games in the second sett, when some splendid tennis was witnessed by a large crowd at the Circle Sportif Club yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Pearson had a fairly easy win over Mrs. Murray in the finals of the Ladies' Singles Championship.

The match called for the best out of three setts, but the last year's champion made very certain of her position by taking the opening sett by 6 games to love and the next by 6 games to 1.

Despite the one-sided look of the score, those who lined the courts found the twenty minutes of play full of interest.

Mrs. Pearson is altogether delightful to watch. With a fast low serve, a wonderful power of placing the ball just where she wants it and just where her opponent is not; an instinct to anticipate a return; and a powerful drive, she is a real champion.

From her form of yesterday it will take a very fine player to dislodge her from the premier position which she has held for so long.

Mrs. Murray plays a good game. Her serve looks something like the old "round arm" ball of the cricketer, but it lacks the sting of Mrs. Pearson's. She has a strong return and against anyone else would probably score regularly.

The stroke which Mrs. Murray used frequently yesterday afternoon, and which won the generous applause of the spectators, was a back-hand drive which she seemed able to deliver from all positions.

Judge Skinner Turner presented the cup to Mrs. Pearson at the end of the match. Mr. A. H. George was an excellent umpire and kept the spectators well informed as to the state of the game.

Iron Men Who Starred In Twenty-Six-Inning Battle

Leon Cadore and Joe Oeschger

Twenty-six fighting innings to a tie. The memorable battle between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Braves shattered all previous records for long distance games in the history of baseball. Leon Cadore, the Brooklyn right-hander, pitched the entire distance for his team, as did Joe Oeschger, of the Braves. The long game, in the opinion of Uncle Wilbert Robinson, Dodger manager, was one of the prettiest pitching duels he ever witnessed in his forty-odd years of baseball. At the close of the twenty-sixth inning, with the score 1 to 1, the game was called because of darkness.

Conrad's Art Spans Two Decades

Unique Task Accomplished In "The Rescue"

The Rescue. By Joseph Conrad. Doubleday, Page and Co.

Color and romance; the romance of lonely, distant seas, of high and perilous adventure, of gallant emprise and of a friendship such as seldom falls to the lot of any man; the romance of power, of political intrigue, and of one of those great passions which seem to hold within themselves the seeds of fatality, the doom of those who feel them, the doom of those, even, who but come in contact with them—here is the very warp and woof of this splendid and glowing tale, at once the new and the old work of that master teller of tales who is Joseph Conrad. For "The Rescue," but recently finished, was begun twenty years ago. We have Mr. Conrad's own statement for this, else the thing would seem scarcely credible, so much of unity is there in the novel, so complete and perfectly rounded out is the story it has to relate. Not that the style and characterisation do not both show certain alteration as the narrative proceeds; there is, indeed, one place in the book where the change is distinct enough to be noticeable. But that place comes at a point where a marked change is rendered necessary, or, at least, expedient by the demands of the plot, of the narrative itself. An increased depth of understanding, an increased subtlety of characterisation, of thought, of style, of response to the inward as distinct from the outward history of the persons involved also show themselves, a more nearly complete dominance of the spiritual over the material aspects of the narrative, so that the one seems of importance principally as it affects and gives scope to the other. The Joseph Conrad of twenty years ago who wrote the first part and laid out the plan of "The Rescue" is naturally not altogether the same person as the Joseph Conrad who finished it, the Joseph Conrad who wrote the wonderful, unforgettable climax of it all; but neither is the Tom Lingard who stood upon the deck of his brig Lightning on that calm afternoon when the little vessel "floated tranquil and upright as if bolted solidly keel to keel, with its image reflected in the unframed and immense mirror of the sea, the same Tom Lingard who, in the growing dawn, sat beside a newmade grave, immobile, not even turning his head to watch her go, the woman who for him stood "above death itself."

It is a tale of the Malayan Archipelago and of that coast which "has been known for ages to the armed wanderers of these seas as 'The Shore of Refuge,'" which Mr. Conrad here unfolds, of Tom Lingard, Brixton trawler-boy, gold digger and owner of the beautiful little brig Lightning, and of that Hassim who was the rightful Rajah of Wajo, and of his devoted sister, the brave young Princess Immada, these the two fugitives whom Lingard "had snatched away from the jaws of death on a night of storm and had promised to lead back to their own country he had seen but once, sleeping unmoved under the wrath and fire of heaven." This, the restoration of these two, was the mission which for friendship's sake and for the satisfaction of his own chivalrous generosity Lingard had undertaken, and to which he devoted two years of his life. Others entered his plans; there was Jorgenson, who had once been Captain of the barque Rose, the gaunt skeptic who, though living, was yet but a phantom, a restless shade that Lingard presently drew back across "the waters of oblivion" to mingle once more in the affairs of men. And there was Belarab, the chieftain whose land the Dutch had taken and who had built and made strong the Settlement upon the Shore of Refuge, and others, chiefs and rulers of the land and of the sea. And their arrangements were progressing and all was going well until one night there came a hail from out the darkness, and a boat approached the brig Lightning bringing a story of white people on board a stranded yacht. And with the coming of these white people the tragedy began. For one of them was Edith Travers, a woman who had over the Malay Princess Immada "the superiority of the flower over the leaf, of the phrase that contains a thought over the cry that can only express an emotion," being indeed one of those rare women for whom it is that "people toil on the ground and underground and artists of all sorts invoke their inspiration . . . there are not many of them. And yet they are all." Inevitably as the tide the tragedy rises which presently sweeps over almost every one of them, bringing some to death and others to payment of "the uttermost farthing"; because while catching a glimpse of Paradise they ignored "the call of the supreme minute," thereby permitting the symbol of that call to become merely "a dead talisman." A well-intentioned, hideous blunder on the part of one; a mission unfulfilled by another; the love of a woman bringing with it forgetfulness of all save her presence—it is the stuff of which the great stories of the world are made, those stories which belong to no especial race or place or time, and because they are universal never lose their appeal, their power to stir the imaginations of men.

Yet the colorful background of this tale plays an important part in the drama, now blending with its events and its personages, now throwing them, as it were, into high relief. It is a background of the changeful, unchanging sea the sea which is the great mother of romance, and of a coast harboring a civilisation strange to our own. Lingard himself, by whom they sometimes called "King Tom," that man of "infinite illusions," has in his soul much of the strength and of the simplicity of the sea, the sea which has nourished his visions and his "visionary's pride." This strong simplicity of his, its noble fineness and clarity, seem the greater when brought into contact with the more complex yet direct woman who came into his life straight from a world "too prudent to be sincere." But she was one who felt "a momentary longing to know the naked truth of things," and who in her girlhood had dreamed great dreams, though her days had been passed "without a glimpse of sincerity or true passion" until for her a sense of unreality permeated most things, if not all.

The book is absorbingly interesting; dramatic, subtle, fascinating with that allurement, that sheed power and sweep of romance which is Joseph Conrad's to command. It has that quality of inevitability which silences all questioning; the tragic result must surely come; Lingard can no more escape the passion which holds him than the man who is fey can escape his doom. Of the beauty, the exquisite flexibility of the style—a style whose glow and color is not the hard glitter of jewels, but rather that of sunlight sparkling upon dew-drenched leaves or flashing back from the wings of bright-hued tropical birds, and which can express the most delicate shades of thought and feeling—it is scarcely necessary to speak here and at this late day. Mr. Conrad has declared himself "overstrained" with the writing of this book, but no sense of strain is conveyed to the reader. Deeply emotional, rich in color it is instinct with the high spirit and generous ardor of a dreamer of splendid dreams, one who was indeed a worthy successor to those other fearless and chivalrous adventurers who through all the ages have responded to the mysterious summons of the sea.

LOUISE MAUNSELL FIELD.

ALSACE IN RUST AND GOLD

Edith O'Shaughnessy's New Book One Of Sympathy and Appeal

Edith O'Shaughnessy's "Alsace in Rust and Gold" (Harper's) is one of those irritating books whose leaves must be cut at the bottom, distributing fluffy paperlint; but those leaves surely will be cut, once the reader begins.

For Mrs. O'Shaughnessy has written an intensely appealing book. Here are no trays of diplomatic crockery to kick over, as in her Mexico indiscretions; the subject is sympathetic; she should let herself go; she does. And since her great opportunity brought her within the firing line just before the armistice, when our own boys were gaining ground daily in the last great push, there is plenty to tell.

Of the colored men of Col Haywood's Fifteenth:

"When peace is signed dis here nigger starts to walk home."

"What about the ocean?"

The mulatto by his side said: "I subscribes."

But mainly, of course, of Alsace; of girls skipping rope and counting in two languages "ein, zwei, drei, quatre, cinq, six"—poor little girls, so cowed by German discipline that they are still "good" in school; of French sermons getting longer and German ones shorter in bilingual churches as the war-tide rolls north; of the caution—there was need—that the rescuing French should not too greatly overturn local customs; of "delicate, hazy hills with their cashmere shawls still twisted about their shoulders;" of wasteful American doughboys who washed their dishes with soap, so that the dishwater could not be fed to the pigs; of tragedies of sudden death, and triumphs of sacrifices not in vain; of the mysterious way in which, one day, messages bearing the new signatures "Ebert" and "Scheidemann" began sifting through the air; of Hartmannsweilerkopf, where 50,000 sleep; of the armistice——

Mrs. O'Shaughnessy has been well served by the proofreaders, in the main. They may have trembled at the dressing down she gives to those who mangled the Spanish in her Mexico books (incidentaly, also, to the critics who reviewed them) and well chosen photographs convey the charm of peace and the pomp of war. One of the best of the war books; written from the heart, in times when reserves that grip expression were thrown to the winds.

BOOKS OF HISTORY TALES

A Second Volume Of Sabatini's Historical Nights' Entertainment

So popular proved the first volume of Rafael Sabatini's "The Historical Nights' Entertainment," published two years ago, that a second volume has now been issued from the house of the Lippincotts.

These books are made up of tales from actual history, retold with all regard to recorded fact. The present collection, eleven stories in all, includes "The Absolution," a legend of the first King of Portugal; "The False Demetrius," telling of Boris Godunoff and the pretended son of Ivan the Terrible; "The Hermosa Fembra," an episode of the Inquisition; "The Pastry Cook of Madrigal," story of the false Sebastian of Portugal; "The End of the First Gallant," assassination of Henry IV.; "The Barren Wooing," murder of Amy Robsart; "Sir Judas," the betrayal of Sir Walter Raleigh; "His Insolence of Buckingham," courtship by George Villiers of Anne of Austria; "The Path of Exile," fall of Lord Clarendon; "The Tragedy of Herrenhausen," Count Philip Koenigsmark and the Princess Sophia Dorothea; "The Tyrannicide," Charlotte Corday and Jean Paul Marat.

History as it entertains has never been more brightly presented for popular reading than in the Sabatini renderings.

Says England Will Change Pact And Reassure China

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 20.—Writing in the Observer today, Mr. J. O. P. Bland says that everything appears to emphasise the desirability of renewing the Anglo-Japanese Alliance under conditions, calculated to reassure the Chinese and regain their good-will.

Mr. Bland continues: "We are justified in believing that the policy of the Liberals in Japan will continue to gain ground and the jingo tendencies of the military party will soon be modified and restrained by the powerful force of public opinion."

UCHIDA SPEAKS

The writer says that Viscount Uchida expressed the view to him that these ends would probably be facilitated, if Great Britain took the initiative in proposing the renewal of the Alliance with a new basis for common policy in China, calculated to secure the approval and support of the other nations concerned, especially the United States.

Mr. Bland concludes: "The future of the Alliance seems to depend on the ability of the Japanese Government to make good its repeatedly declared policy of good-will and non-interference in China and in this connection all omens tend to justify an optimistic view."

Ancient Spanish Crown Placed In New York Vault

Laredo, Tex, May 8.—There was placed in the safe deposit vault of a New Work bank a few days ago the jeweled and otherwise richly embellished crown of one of the Spanish rulers of the seventeenth century. This ornamented relic of former days is an heirloom of great intrinsic and historic value belonging to the Moncado family, of the City of Mexico.

It was taken to New York by Lorenzo Moncado and placed in a safe deposit vault for safekeeping.

The crown is of beautiful design, richly engraved and set with huge diamonds. It was taken to Mexico from Spain in 1750 by Marquez de Moncado and has passed down the family line.

Harding Refuses To Discuss Irishmen

He declares that there is no record in the Senator's office that such a letter was ever written. The secretary also declares that Senator Harding refuses to discuss the Irish question at present.

TURK MASSACRE OF FRENCH TOLD BY EYE-WITNESS

American Relief Worker Relates How They Ambushed Soldiers

PLEDGED SAFE CONDUCT

Saw Wounded Men Killed And Frenchmen Shot After Surrendering

Aleppo, Syria, May 7 (Associated Press).—The slaughter of the little French garrison which evacuated Urfa on a promise of safe conduct by the Turkish Nationalist troops after the town had been besieged for sixty-one days, is described in the diary of General Woodward, accountant for the American Commission for Relief in the Near East, who was an eye-witness of the massacre. He escaped and returned to Urfa after several hundred French soldiers had been killed or made prisoners by tribesmen.

The French were ambushed by the tribesmen in violation of an agreement made by Nemik Effendi, who came from Angora as the Turkish Nationalist Governments representative, the diary says, and promised the Frenchmen safe conduct if they would evacuate. At that time the French had only four days' rations left, and had eaten all their horses and mules, and evacuation was considered inevitable, as the garrison was greatly outnumbered by the enemy.

General Woodward says in his diary that he saw Turks killing the French wounded on the field, and that he and an officer of the gendarmerie saw prisoners killed by the Turks after they had surrendered.

"Namik Effendi agreed to protect the Christian population, provide a guard of gendarmerie and a transport of sixty camels and thirty horses if the French would leave," the diary says. "The garrison evacuated at 1:30 o'clock in the morning.

ATTACKED FROM THE REAR

"We were suddenly attacked from the rear and from both flanks while we were moving as a column spaced at regular intervals. The order was given to deploy, and this was carried out into the hills occupied by the enemy, who almost surrounded us.

"The attack lasted for two hours, the Turks having 2,000 irregular troops and one machine gun. They made a special target of our transport, doubtless for plunder. As the firing increased other tribes joined in the attack. Our rear guard was caught in a trap from which few escaped alive.

"With the transport destroyed, the rear guard cut off, and our line of defense broken, we could only surrender, and an officer of gendarmerie was sent with a white flag. I accompanied him with an American flag. We were continually fired upon as we approached the enemy, asking for his commander. We were told there was no commander as the troops were irregular, and finally we sent messengers to the flanks and at 10:20 the firing ceased, but another party of Kurds arrived almost immediately and the firing was reopened. I asked the chief of the gendarmerie to return to Urfa with me, which we managed to do by a side trail.

"I saw Kurds killing the wounded and saw soldiers killed after they had surrendered. Emir Effendi, an officer of the gendarmerie also witnessed this and he had one man marched away as a prisoner. I could not find out what became of him.

"Of the French detachment of 500 only 132 soldiers and one officer returned to Urfa. The remainder presumably were killed."

After the French evacuated Urfa the conditions there were reported greatly improved for the American relief workers, as supplies of water and fuel had been cut off and provisions were nearly exhausted.

The Turks held a general meeting of rejoicing over the departure of the French and declared in favor of "a government of the people, by the people and for the people." They declared they no longer recognised the Ottoman Government, promised protection to Armenians, and decided not to disarm them. Miss Mary Caroline Holmes, who speaks the Turkish language, attended the meeting, and at her suggestion the Turks included an Armenian deputy in a delegation selected to go to Angora to report the evacuation of Urfa.

On April 21 a party of American relief workers, including Mrs. Richard Mansfield, was uneventfully escorted by the Turks from Urfa to Aleppo. Miss Margaret Weller of Bloomaburg, Pa., who remained at Urfa, was hit by a spent ball during the siege, but her injury was very slight.

Divorcee Who Married Into Duke Millions

Mrs. Garnet Helen Clarke, former wife of a song writer, who eloped about two weeks ago and was married to Walker P. Inman, twenty-five-year-old, stepson of James B. Duke, multi-millionaire tobacco man. Mrs. Inman is the daughter of Rev. Arthur Patton, of Kokomo, Indiana. She obtained her decree in June, 1919.

Young Inman is said to be a great favorite of his powerful step-father. His mother is wealthy. She was the widow of William Inman, of Atlanta, and was famous for her beauty. The bride is young and pretty. Her marriage to Grant Clarke took place, it is said, forty-five minutes after the two met.

BOLT ARTICLE TEN IN RHODE ISLAND

Democrats, However, Favor A League Based On Self-Determination

Providence, R. I., May 6.—Democrats in State convention here today went on record unanimously as opposed to Article X. of the League of Nations covenant.

A resolutions committee, which included Colonel Patrick H. Quinn, National Committeeman; former Congressman George F. O'Shaunessy, Collector of Internal Revenue here, and other prominent Democrats considered the platform and reported it to the convention with a new plank which stated that Article X. made negative the principles of the covenant and opposing that Article as incorporated in the treaty.

Colonel Quinn's reading of the platform aroused a storm of protest at this piont. Judge Frank E. Fitzsimmons sprang to his feet with an objection against the Democrats of Rhode Island taking such an attitude in opposition to the President and his policies.

John J. Fitzgerald of Pawtucket raised the point of order that Judge Fitzsimmons, who was not a delegate to the convention, had no right to speak. He asserted that Judge Fitzsimmons, who is Collector of the Port of Providence, was opposing the proposed plank because he held a Federal office.

Later Judge Fitzsimmons, on motion of Colonel Quinn, was invited to address the convention, which he did at some length, setting forth his views as to why the Democrats of Rhode Island should support the President and his policies, other speakers followed but the platform was adopted with the plank on Article X. by unanimous vote.

The convention also went on record as favoring recognition of the Irish Republic by the United States, reduction of taxes and continuance of the Administration's attitude toward labor. It attacked the action of the Republican Legislature in spending $5,000 in an attempt to overthrow the Eighteenth Amendment.

The resolution relating to proposed Irish recognition reads:

"Whereas: The President of the United States before America's entrance into the World War, during the war, and after the signing of the armistice repeatedly declared for the principle of self determination and,

"Whereas, President Wilson stated in Paris on January 20, 1919, 'we are here to see that peoples everywhere shall govern themselves not as we wish but as they wish,' and

"Whereas the people of Ireland, in their attempt to throw off the shackles of an unjust government, have set up for themselves a form of government based upon the principles of freedom and in accordance with all the principles of the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America and

"Whereas, the people of Ireland in December, 1918, by a vote of three to one elected to live under a republican form of government and

"Whereas, the Senate of the United States on March 18, 1920, reaffirmed its allegiance to the American principle of self-determination and applied that principle directly to the republic of Ireland by adopting the Gerry resolution.

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the Democratic Party of the State of Rhode Island in convention assembled approves of Senator Gerry's resolution and directs the delegates to the national convention to do everything in their power to the end that the Irish Republic be recognised by the Government of the United States."

The convention expressed approval of a League of Nations based on self-determination for small nationalities. It commended President Wilson and his administration. Demand was made for the ratification of constitutional amendments by popular vote.

Addresses defending Democratic policy and the record of the Wilson Administration were made by Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, Mrs. Antoniette Funk, head of the Publicity Bureau of the Democratic National Committee, and Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald of Massachusetts.

Senator Owen declared that the Federal Reserve Bank act had been of great service to the country toward stabilising business and credit. He said that had it not been for progressive and constructive laws as passed by the Democrats the World War as far as America was concerned could not have been successfully prosecuted. He also said that the prospects were very bright for a great victory for the Democratic Party nationally and in the States next November.

Britain Decides To Help Persia

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 21.—The Daily Express learns that the Cabinet has decided to reject the demand for the withdrawal of the British forces in Persia, which will be lent all military aid required.

France's War Losses

(From Japan Gazette)

Although it is seventeen months since the last shot of the war was fired, the latest French "casualty list" contains the names of over twenty-eight thousand men, these deaths all occurring since November 11, 1918. In an official statement of losses issued here the total number of deaths in the French army is now given as 1,388,000.

The early months of the war were the most costly to France, according to a resume in the statement. The first eighteen months cost 941,000 men killed in action died of wounds, missing in action and prisoners. From February, 1916, to the armistice—thirty-four months—the definite casualties numbered 885,000.

The first battle of the Marne was the most costly. The total losses for August and September, 1914, were 329,000 men. Included in this, however, is a relatively large number taken prisoners by the Germans.

Verdun, the defense of which took place in 1916, comes next. The grim determination of the poilu that the boche should not pass cost the lives, or temporary disability, of 179,000 men. The second battle of Verdun, in which the French took the offensive during November and December, 1916, saw only 38,000 definite French casualties.

During this time, on the Somme, the French suffered the loss of 136,000 men. The Aisne offensive in the spring of 1917, which was called off by M. Painleve, who was at that time minister of war, and which battle, according to prominent French critics, would have ended hostilities a year earlier had it been allowed to proceed, resulted in 110,000 definite casualties.

Although these figures are large, they tend to show that the criticism of the "Nivelle Offensive" was somewhat unjust, and that the engagement was not as murderous as its critics said at the time.

For the defensive campaign of 1918 the casualties number 167,000 and for the offensive starting July 18, which ended with the signing of the armistice, four months later, the losses are given as 163,000. It is estimated that 2,800,000 poilus were wounded during the war, and the total number of French casualties is given at 4,690,800.

Poppy Growing Encouraged By Provinces; Peking Has No Way To Suppress Evil

Traffic Conducted In Eight Provinces Not Only With Cognisance But At Instigation Of Local Officials; Tax On Drug Collected

(China Press Correspondent)

Peking, June 20.—The following details, from an authoritative source, indicate to what extent the various local Chinese authorities are failing to suppress the growth of the opium poppy.

It is believed here that the Peking Government is sincere in its desire to see the country rid of the evil, but the fact that Peking has no control over the rest of the country makes all its efforts in this direction abortive.

Communications from several provinces show that poppy is being extensively cultivated in the provinces of Yunnan, Fukien, Kweichow and Shensi and, to some extent, in Honan, Szechuen, Chihli and Kansu.

From one district in Hunan—around Shenchow, and in seven hsien districts—the poppy is generally cultivated. And in the district known as Shuiyuan, around Jehol, the plant is grown almost everywhere.

OFFICIALS ACCUSED

The significant fact is that the poppy is grown not simply with the cognisance of the local officials, but at their instigation.

From Yunnan it is reported that the Governor issued a proclamation against poppy cultivation at the request of the British Consul, but at the same time himself one of the biggest traders in opium and has an office in Yunnanfu, where taxes on opium are collected.

In that province it is possible to travel for days together and not be out of sight of the poppy blooms.

ENFORCE GROWTH

In Fukien both the north and south military rulers have enforced the growth of the poppy.

In the district of Hinghwa Colonel Wang was sent by the Governor to superintend the cultivation of poppy. The colonel and his soldiers went to different villages, assessed the amount of opium that could be raised, and imposed a fine, for deficiency, in some cases exceeding the total wealth of the poppy-growers.

In one district—Yung Tai—the protest against what was being done was so vigorous that the authorities at Foochow sacrificed their friends and the opium tax was abrogated and denounced, to the rejoicing of the district.

HARD TO FIND OUT

In Yunnan, missionaries have been annoyed because they were suspected of giving information regarding the cultivation of the poppy; and for this reason it has been difficult to get full information from places where the poppy is known to be widely grown.

The cultivation of the poppy in Yunnan has been excused on the ground that a large amount of Burma opium is brought across the frontier into Yunnan, which fact has been strongly represented to the British Government.

From the district of Hanchowfu, Shensi, it is reported that land was rented by General Liu Ts'enhou, the ex-governor of Szechuen at a rate fixed by himself, and was sowed with poppy. The farmers in the surrounding districts were encouraged to cultivate opium and were assured of General Liu's protection if they did so.

KILL OBSERVERS

The local Taoyin was opposed to this proceeding and appointed three officials to destroy the poppy. These three, with the necessary laborers, were surprised by General Liu's men; the three officials were shot, and eleven of their men were beaten to death. Opium is now freely produced in the district.

From Hunan it is reported that the Kweichow soldiers bring thousands of catties of opium to Yuanchow and Hungkiang. General Wang, who has been in charge of this district for two years, will not permit any utterance against opium.

From Minchow, Kansu, it is reported that the Governor is nominally against opium, and his agents seize all they can; but not for destruction. Instead, is is secretly sold, and the proceeds are divided amongst the clique.

SHOW TREND

These instances suffice to show what is going on in the provinces, in spite of the activities of the Central Government.

These activities include the sending out of high commissioners to report the facts concerning poppy cultivation. The Ministry of the Interior appears to be sincere when it says it does not intend to punish the people for growing poppy, but the officials for allowing them and encouraging them to do so.

While such are the conditions in the provinces, there is a very large trade done in Peking and the immediate neighborhood. Over thirty names of places where opium may be bought are known, while the hospitals report the admission of many cases of opium smoking.

MORPHIA ALSO

The enormous traffic in morphia still continues, as is evidenced by the seizure made at Tientsin on April 22, when morphia consigned to a Japanese toy-seller was seized in quantity sufficient to supply two and a half million injections. When the facts were brought before him, the Japanese Consul-General at Tientsin, Mr. Funatsu, was energetic in the matter of bringing the delinquent to book.

Reserved to the last is the state of things at Tsingtao, the facts of which are as follows:

FACTS ARE STATED

1.—The Japanese Military authorities, shortly after they took possession of Tsingtao, contracted with a Mr. Liu Tze-shan, a Chinese, for a monopoly of the opium business throughout the leased territory. This contract has been renewed annually.

2.—Two years ago the contract was said to be nominally between a Japanese representative of the military government and Mr. Liu; but during the past two years it has been directly between Mr. Liu and the military government.

3.—The opium is brought from Formosa and India, and is supposed to cost $20 per pound. It comes mostly in packets of a little more than a pound each, 160 packets to a case. There are, however, larger packages of over four pounds each. Consignments usually consist of about 300 cases.

OPIUM BOATS MARKED

4.—The boats bringing this opium fly a flag bearing the words, "For military use." This prevents the customs officers examining them. They are thus unloaded and carried by army wagons direct to the military yamen and stored.

5.—Mr. Liu has his headquarters in a large building marked "Japanese Government Opium Office." There is also a place called the "Fu Sang Kao;" that is, public place for the wholesale and retail sale of opium.

6.—There are seven other shops that act as sub-agents, doing both a wholesale and a retail business, but buying all their stock through the above firm.

7.—Much of this opium goes out over the railway and large quantities go by junk to the adjacent coast cities and towns.

8.—The users and purveyors of this opium are not only not punished, but are protected by the military police. The Chinese customs officers, however, faithfully seize and hand over to their government any guilty ones who fall into their hands; but these officers are helpless to deal with the main traffic.

MR. LIU 'PERSUADED'

9.—Mr. Liu was said, by 1919, to have profited to the extent of over $700,000 by the traffic. He was "persuaded" to give out of his profits the sum of $50,000 for the construction of the "handsome new hospital" which was "built by the Japanese Government for Chinese patients only"; and he is said to have been "persuaded" to "give handsome sums" toward the support of the schools in Tsingtao.

In view of the fact that Japan is a signatory of the Hague Convention, under which she is pledged not to import opium into the territory of any Power that has forbidden its importation; and in view of the fact that China is said to be determined to refer the whole Shantung question to the League of Nations, the foregoing information, the reliability of which cannot be impugned, about the Japanese official trade in opium in the leased territory, which is still part of China, is highly important.

RUSSIAN BABES WILL MAKE TRIP AROUND WORLD

Youngsters To Be Taken Through Panama Canal By Red Cross

A thousand homeless children who were driven by hunger from their homes in and around Petrograd and who have since been cared for by the American Red Cross, are to make a trip around the world before returning to their parents. It has been decided that they will be taken through the Panama Canal and thence across the Atlantic instead of being sent through Suez Canal from Vladivostok by way of Shanghai.

Several changes have been made in the original plans for the return of the children. They will not be brought to Shanghai and they will make the journey through the canal in one ship, instead of in three, as was at first planned. The ship on which the youngsters, who range from 4 years to 17 years of age, will make the voyage has not been named in despatches to the Red Cross officials here, but it is generally supposed that it will be an American army transport.

ACC

PARENTS DISAPPOINTED

When Girls not Thrive.

In the matter of health and progress boys usually cause more worry than girls to parents, during the first ten years of life. Then things are reversed, as is apparent in almost any family.

As soon as they begin to enter their 'teens girls too often prove a disappointment as well as a worry to parents. Perhaps they are growing too fast, or lessons exhaust them. They turn peevish and irritable, become pale, thin and sickly; always seem to be ailing and likely to go into a decline.

A wise mother recognises these signs of anæmia. "Too little blood," she says to herself, "and blood that is as thin and pale as the girl herself." There's the cause of weakness and arrested development. The ailing, anæmic girl must have new, healthy blood and Dr. Williams' pink pills supply that need, as is well known by great numbers of mothers. As the new, rich blood made by Dr. Williams' pink pills nourishes every part of the system, so bloodless girls and young women become bright. They regain their colour and charm, their eyes have the sparkle of health, they are no longer breathless and thin, but hearty and full of life. One of the earliest signs of this improvement is a keen appetite for meals and ability to digest food.

What has been done in countless cases of the kind in England, Canada, America, Australia, South Africa and other countries by Dr. Williams' pink pills can also be done for you and yours. The time to begin is now. Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Williams' pink pills; also post free, at $1.50 the bottle, $8 for six, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Hankow Market

FINANCE AND MONEY MARKET

The exchange market has been rather unsettled during the week. Some export bills were placed on the 15th inst, but the delay in the receipt of telegrams from Shanghai prevented business being done on the 16th inst. There was not much demand for remittance. Taels T.T. on Shanghai, rose to 96.85 and are today quoted at 96.7. Foreign Banks again imported and quoted 96.8 to 96.9. Dollars Chinese Market are being quoted at 69.975-70.175 buyers and sellers respectively. Native Interest fell to 8¼ percent per annum and later on advanced to 16 percent at which rate it was quoted at the end of the week. Changsha Exchange Nominal.

IMPORTS

The market continues dead, the situation in Hunan being unchanged and the near approach of the Dragon Boat Festival on the 21st inst. being responsible to a large degree for this state of affairs.

There is absolutely no enquiry and clearances are of a retail nature.

EXPORTS

Export business has been utterly disorganised by the Exchange position which has put the final touches to the collapse of most markets at Home, and the wild fluctuations now taking place have turned business into a price gamble. Prices are steady locally and except for a considerable business in Beans and Wood Oil and a single purchase of Seed there is little doing.

Prohibited Photography

(From Japan Chronicle)

Many persons, including foreign visitors to Japan, have had the unpleasant experience of being examined by the police or summoned to law-courts, very often culminating in being compelled to pay fines, because they took photographs in zones where photographing is prohibited for strategical reasons. Needless to say, these persons have been, almost without exception unconscious offenders, their love of fine scenery and snapshoting being the cause of their trouble. Mrs. Harada, the wife of the proprietor of the Harada Steamship Company, of Osaka, is the latest victim. She was so fascinated with the beautiful scenery in the vicinity of Itsukushima that she took a photograph, not dreaming that she was violating the law of her country in so acting. As ill luck would have it, a policeman happened to be near by, and he was so faithful in the discharge of his duties that he saw that the lady was prosecuted on the charge of violating the Strategic Zone Law. The case was referred to the Procurator's Office of the Osaka Chiho Saibansho, which after examination ordered her to pay a fine of Y. 10.

Can Germany Pay? Yes!

THE Hythe Conference of the Allies has fixed the cash indemnity which Germany is to pay at 3,000,000,000 gold marks annually for 35 years, which, we take it, includes interest. In other words, Germany will fork over £150,000,000 or $750,000,000 (gold) every year, figuring the pound sterling at $5 rather than $4.86, or the present price, for the sake of convenience. We like to have our calculations and with a lot of irreproachable and unchallengable ciphers.

The total sum that Germany will pay in the 35 years is 105,000,000,000 gold marks, or £5,250,000,000, or $26,250,000,000 (gold). We confidently expect that Germany will promptly announce that she cannot pay such a sum. When she talks over the bad news with the Allies at Spa she will point out that her ships are gone, her iron and coal mines and colonies largely gone, large stretches of territory with industrious population taken from her; that she has not enough food to live on and is lacking in raw materials of every description, besides having vast debts to be paid in gold, of which she has not a great deal left. On top of this, her political present and future are chaotic, while her population is suffering from shell-shock, malnutrition and mental depression.

It makes a sad story but it is spoiled by the fact that it is inexact. Recent investigations by Allied experts have revealed the fact that German warehouses are full of both raw materials and manufactured goods and that the Germans are working with but one aim which is to effect a "come-back" before France and Russia and the rest of Europe can do the same thing. They reason that by doing this they will again dominate Europe no matter what they owe, because their lands and cities were not devastated by the war, and their youths who were too young to get into the war are now working into productive manhood.

Nor are they so divided over Bolshevism as they would have the rest of the world believe. In fact they do not want Bolshevism and they do not want militarism. They want commercialism and that is what they are going after, no matter what their political deceptions and subterfuges. They are by no means as divided politically as most any other country you may care to name. They are still capable of a solid herd movement, so long as it is not in the direction of militarism. And the further they go without militarism the more they will abhor it.

This statement of the present material and psychological conditions in Germany we believe to be incontrovertible. There is another phase, however, which gives double assurance of Germany's ability to pay. Germany's standing army before the war was, approximately 850,000 men. With the navy included it would be say, 1,000,000 men who were withdrawn from active productive pursuits and maintained at an average expense (food, clothing, equipment, pay, etc.) of £100 per annum per man. The Allies, while maintaining large armies and navies themselves, for the present at least, have relieved Germany of this expense. She saves the £100 per annum per man on about 900,000 men and besides this gets the use of the men in production. This accounts for £90,000,000 per annum on the army's maintenance, or about $450,000,000 (gold), and if the men thus released earn the same sum they formerly cost Germany will be able to pay the indemnity without turning in any other direction and even have a neat sum left over.

Besides which she no longer will have an army and navy to worry about and thus will be able to concentrate on more important matters. She can let the others who still have the armies and navies, do the worrying. Great Britain, the United States and France, for instance, will go on for some little time each spending more than the German annual indemnity on their armies and navies.

Coast Defenses

Lessons Drawn From Experiences In The World War

(From an address by Lieutenant-Colonel H. W. Miller, U. S. A., May 25, at St. Louis to the Society of Mechanical Engineers)

Until this war it has apparently been an undecided question as to whether any point on a coast or any section of a coast line can be so fortified as to be impregnable to attack from sea.

During this war there were three sections of coast line that were so fortified as to be considered practically impregnable, except at a prohibitive cost, to attack from the sea.

These were the section of German coast at Kiel, defended by mine fields and the fortifications at Heligoland, the Turkish center of Constantinople, protected by the fortifications of the Strait of Gallipoli, and the Belgian protected by the fortifications of the only two landing points, Ostend and Zeebrugge.

The disastrous attempt and failure to force the Strait of Gallipoli instilled in the Allies a wholesome respect for the difficulties involved there, and to the best of the writer's knowledge no real attempt was made to force the defenses of Heligoland and Kiel. It is probable that the defenses at Ostend could have been forced if the Allies had been willing to pay the price, but apparently they were not willing to do so. . . .

During the spring of 1918, April 23 to be exact, an attempt was made to block the harbors of Zeebrugge and Ostend. The mole at Zeebrugge was pierced and the boat Vindictive, loaded with concrete, was placed across the entrance of Ostend harbor. The boats engaged in these undertakings received terrible punishment, but apparently accomplished their mission. It seems probable that had the Allies cared to make the sacrifice it would have been possible to force either harbor, although it is not very likely that they could have retained possession of them for any great length of time. . . .

In the attack upon Zeebrugge the Vindictive was under the fire of a 150-mm. German gun at ranges of from 200 to 500 yards for approximately one hour. Portions of the superstructure of the boat were injured, but the Vindictive was not prevented from fulfilling its mission of landing a force of marines from two ferry-boats which it had in tow. . . .

In spite of the fact that a majority of the batteries (German batteries at Ostend and Zeebrugge) were located on top of the dunes and in plain sight of the sea, there is no evidence that any of them were damaged by shell fire.

It is probable that no firing was done against the Palace Hotel Battery because of the damage that would be done the large buildings round about.

It is understood on good authority that the allied ships paid constant attention to both those batteries installed on the dunes, as well as those located behind the dunes.

As early as 1916 the exact locations of practically every battery behind the dunes were determined from airplanes. It is understood that the monitors came within a few kilometers of the coast at night, camouflaging their gun fire by blinding flares. It is reported that on practically all occasions when the ships shelled the coast fortifications during the day heavy smoke screens were at once set up the Germans which evidently afforded effective protection. Just back of the Battery Irene, between the dune and road, a large number of steel pots or cylinders 18 inches in diameter and 24 inches in height were found, which had been used by the Germans in setting up their smoke screens. The writer saw many of the holes made by airplane bombs, but could not find any single case in which either the inland guns or the guns in the dunes had been struck by shell firing from sea or by bombs dropped from airplanes.

Pennsylvania Has $5,000,000 Gold Of Pirate Hoard

Rare Collection Represents Decay Of Old Civilisations

(From The New York Evening Post)

Five million dollars' worth of pirate gold—some of which has never been melted down because of its exquisite workmanship—has been placed on permanent display at the museum of the University of Pennsylvania. It is the largest collection ever brought together of the gold work of the Aztecs, the Incas and other ancient Central American gold workers, whose civilisation was destroyed by the buccaneers seeking the metal.

One part of this collection has been buried in the mountains of Colombia, probably by the Indians who made it, to save the treasure from the invaders. The other is composed of heirlooms handed down to a French family descended from some branch of early Spanish royalty who got the pieces from shipments sent home perhaps by Cortez and his followers. They may have been contributed by or taken from Montezuma. The first part was purchased in this country by the museum just after it had been brought to New York by its discoverers; the second was picked up in Paris a year ago by Dr. George Byron Gordon, director of the museum.

GREED FOR GOLD

The gold itself has a background of romance of other days. Dr. William Curtis Farabee, explorer and ethnologist, shows in a description that the metal, which has been the lure of mankind for ages, is more productive of tragedy than romance. The collection now in Philadelphia is representative of the destruction of two or more civilisations in this country, and of the grandeur that was Spain's.

"Thirst for geographical knowledge may have inspired Columbus to set out on his voyage of discovery, but certainly greed for gold was the inspiration for the conquest that followed," says Dr. Farabee. "Cortez told the plain truth to Montezuma, as he afterward learned to his sorrow, when he said that the Spaniards were suffering from a disease which only gold could cure. Montezuma sent supplies of the yellow metal to alleviate their suffering, only to discover that the disease was really incurable. Gold has ever been interwoven with human history, but nowhere have the results of gold seeking been so disastrous as in the Spanish conquest of America. The possessors, together with their superior culture, were immediately destroyed, while the dispossessors and their government were debauched and immediately began to degenerate.

ALLOY OF SILVER

"The quality of the gold is very variable. In a few cases there is an alloy of silver, but in most cases the alloy is copper. The technique is most interesting. In the simplest case a single gold nugget is hammered into the form of some object. Other nuggets may be hammered into plates or thin sheets and cut to suit the purpose. Many objects have the appearance of having been soldered, but when they are broken they show a rough fracture with pitted granular surfaces characteristic of casting.

"Gold was used for the most part as a useful metal for decoration and ornament, but it was often associated with religious thought. According to the Inca belief, an egg of copper fell from heaven, from which sprang the first Indians; after a time an egg of silver fell from which sprang the nobility, and after a longer period an egg of gold fell, from which issued the Inca. Among the Chocos of Colombia an important idol of gold was worshipped and slaves were sacrificed to it at certain seasons of the year. The idol represented a woman who was once human, and gave birth to a child who became the creator. She was defied after death, becoming mistress of thunder and lightning. The priests performed ceremonies before her to procure sunshine or rain when desired.

ALL KINDS OF GODS

"The objects in the collection here represented cover the whole field of suggested uses. Some of them are no doubt the direct representation of the god in human form; some are animal gods; some are coverings or ornaments of idols; some are personal amulets, some show rank of wearer, and others are personal decorations and ornaments. We have historic references for all these uses.

"On that eventful day in 1513 when Balboa beheld the Pacific from a mountain peak in Darien he learned of a great empire to the southward, where gold was a household metal, where 'pots and pans and kitchen utensils were of gold and plate,' and the people valued it not. Pizarro and his ruffian adventurers found a land the like of which no one had ever dreamed, and the name of Peru stood for ages as a symbol of wealth unbounded. The accounts of enormous quantities of Inca gold obtained by Pizarro are well known. Of those vast stores, objects of pure gold by the hundreds of thousands, not one single specimen has come down to us. Since Spanish times many treasures have been found in Central and South America, and they, too, with very few exceptions, have found their way to the melting pot.

"The Colombian treasure was unearthed a few months ago in the department of Antioquia, not far from the famous sacred lake of Guatavita, into which enormous quantities of precious objects were cast as offerings to the gods at the annual festival of the people. Priests with treasures of gold and emeralds paddled on a raft to the center of the lake, burned incense and sacrificed the offerings. The high priest who had been sprinkled with gold dust until he appeared a gilded man, the 'El Dorado' of the Spaniards, cast himself into the sacred waters, bearing the treasures of all the people, deposited them at the bottom and returned to land. When the ruler of this region was compelled to submit to the Spanish conquerors he is said to have sacrificed to the lake two tons of gold and precious stones. Part of the collection may well have been the accumulation of a temple hidden away to prevent its falling into the hands of Quesada, who began the conquest of Bogota in 1536."

A HELMET OF PURE GOLD

The Colombian part of the collection contains ninety-three pieces, from breast plates to bells, bracelets, girdles, earrings and even golden staples and a helmet of pure gold. In the Paris collection two of the most important objects are pure gold idols, hollow cast, nine inches high and three inches wide at the shoulders. There are eighty-four pieces in this collection. One lot includes six gold crowns from one to four inches in width, and another consists of the fragment of a mask of a human face, with inlaid headband, eyes and teeth. At each corner of the mouth a turquoise is set representing teeth.

The Inca collection also contains a death mask of thin, beaten gold, and includes altogether seventeen articles, some of them gold and silver men. The Central American collection totals twenty-nine pieces, including gold bells, four gold birds, gold frogs and disks. In the Aztec collection there are sixteen pieces of gold. Precious stones are by far the most interesting part of this collection.

"Among the Aztecs," says Dr. Farabee, "jade, crystal and jet were as highly prized as gold, silver and copper. The bright green jade was considered so precious that its use was restricted to those of high rank. Beads and necklaces of jade were collected from certain tribes of Indians as tribute money. In the production of the finer works of art in jade and crystal points of flint and copper were used for engraving and drilling. When the cutting was completed emery was employed in rubbing and polishing the surfaces. It is said that Montezuma sent beautiful specimens of crystal and jade by Cortez for the personal use of the emperor."

This part of the collection contains two necklaces of alternate gold and jade heads, highly polished, a decorated jade bead five inches long, a jade ear ornament, two birds' heads, six carved heads and one elaborately carved human figure of bright green jade seated in a panel, six jade squatting human figures from 1½ to 3½ inches high, a death's head, a cylindrical head and a lip plug, all of perfect crystal, and six jet lip plugs.

Young Japan To Young Korea

A 'Heart To Heart' Cry

BY MASUJIRO HONDA, L.H.D.
(Japan Advertiser)

Mr. Muneyoshi Yanagi, a young writer in philosophy and literature, has contributed an open letter to his Korean friends to the current issue of the Kaizo or "Reconstruction." As far as I knew, this letter expresses ideas that even the most ardent of Japanese friends of a people they believe misgoverned or maltreated, has not dared put in black and white. Naturally the censor or the editor struck out here a line, there a number of words, and at other places several lines together. The writer's heart, however, is revealed sufficiently to impress the heart of every Korean or of every well wisher of the Koreans. Mr. Yanagi is a nephew of Mr. Jigoro Kano, of Judo fame, who recently sailed from Yokohama for the International Olympic Games at Antwerp, as President of the Japan Physical Training Association. The young publicist traveled in Korea a few years ago in the interest of the old arts peculiar to its people, while his wife, Madame Kaneko Yanagi, is one of the talented singers turned out by the Government Academy of Music at Uyeno. The following extracts are translated from Japanese and the first person singular means the writer of the epistle, and not the translator.

THE VOICE OF HUMANITY

My heart is entirely lost in Korean affairs these days. Why so? I cannot make out myself. Where are words enough to explain sentiment? When I enter into your hearts and realise how lonesome you must be, unutterable sorrows exude from my eyes. (one line omitted) My heart cannot be at rest. When my heart turns to you, (16 words omitted) I feel as if called by some mysterious power, I cannot help hearing the voice that calls in this way, because it has awakened in me a love of humanity. Affection draws me forcibly to you now I cannot remain silent why should I not come close to you? When friendship wells up in the blood, does not one heart wish to address another? If possible fain would I stretch this warm hand toward you.

Man is born to love mankind. Hatred or strife cannot possibly be the true object of humanity. Nations and hearts are separated from one another through various impure motive. (19 words omitted). But where could be the unnatural that would last for ever? Every heart is yearning to return to Nature. Should all return to Nature, love would course through mankind more abundantly, I imagine. (34 words omitted). Thou shalt love one another, says the Teaching. Love is deep-seated in man, not because it was taught by the Holy One: his teaching is profound because it is based upon human nature. The most precious in this world is neither power nor knowledge, it is nothing bigger than a genial sentiment of humanity, I believe.

THE HOPES OF YOUNG JAPAN

Where on earth has there ever been politics founded on sentiments? Or a military power founded on love? Strife lacks morals, and there has never been a war with religion in it. This thought pains people who know truth. I crave that Japan should always be just and warm-hearted. If she ever acts in an inhuman way, Japan cannot be a religious Japan. Unfortunately the present relations between nations have not reached the level of morality, even; how could we hope to find a religious love in them! (two lines omitted). Most persons hardly suspect that a crime has been committed. It is connived at as unavoidable in this imperfect world of ours. If however there is a people who suffer from such an act, it is a national disgrace and a shame of mankind. Justice-loving Japan should by no manner of means hesitate to rectify the error. We always desire to raise the State up to truth itself.

Sooner or later, I firmly trust, the day will come to Japan when she will be supported by truth. I know young Japanese are striving hard to attain this lofty ideal. You should not, if you please, deny those Japanese who are your brethren. According to my impartial observation, there are scarcely any Japanese who as private individuals think ill of you Korean people. On the contrary, we are constantly thinking of you as a nation whose ancestors excelled in arts and crafts. Even in the midst of the strife with Russia, we did not forget to drink deep in the spring of her great literature and thought. Two nations are rent in twain not through personal enmity. I believe that my countrymen in their hearts have never forsaken their brethren of Korea. Those of us, at all events, who will form the future Japan cannot rest unamenable to reason and cold in feeling.

JAPAN'S DISGRACE

You and we, I am sure, are true brothers in flesh and blood, historically, geographically, racially and linguistically. (two lines omitted). Japan's true brother, Korea, should not be Japan's (blank). That is the disgrace of all Japan's disgraces, rather than a dishonor of Korea. Here is a point which I must ask you to reconsider. Just as it is a positive crime for us to inflict the slightest wound on your skin with a sword, I pray you to realise that it is against Heaven's decree to kill one another, and ask you to refrain from bringing about a revolution through bloodshed. The peace obtained by politics or military power is no better than an interested or enforced peace. I cannot wish the relations of your country and mine to end in such. You too should not rely on your own military power or politics. Military power or politics does not warm the human heart in any country. The eternal honor of a nation lies in its art, its religion, its philosophy, alone.

KOREAN ART

The keynote of the Korean arts is the longing for the call of love. They are expressions of a heart hungering and thirsting after human affections and craving to live in love. A long, agonising, painful history of Korea has breathed into the nostrils of its creations a note of loneliness and sorrow. As in Japanese arts, I do not deny Chinese influence in Korean arts, of course. But how could Chinese feelings be the feeling of the Koreans? What likeness is there between the Chinese procelain of the Ming dynasty and the Korean porcelain of the Yi dynasty? The first Japanese civilisation was born out of the arts and religion of Korea. We must remember this fact with gratitude. To render due homage to the eternal mission of Korea in arts and crafts is, I venture to think the right attitude Japan should take. As long as the people of Korea exist, their works of creation will revive over and over again.

I do not take much stock in the so-called intimate experience of the Japanese in Korea. Unless they enter into the inner man of Korea, their experience is but skin deep. Such experience does not endorse real understanding at all. They lack deep religious faith and penetrative appreciation of art. Unfortunately they are forgetful of believing in you as friends. (25 words omitted). If only they had abundant faith and affection, they would not have hesitated to respect you. If only they knew what you had been seeking through your arts, their present attitude toward you would surely undergo a complete change. Many of the foreign missionaries are laboring under the illusion that they are of a superior race. But I cannot help feeling that the same ugliness obtains in the attitude of us Japanese who pose as superior to you.

My friends in Korea, many unseen friends of mine, please do not think I am an exceptional Japanese. Pray trust in my words; many of my known friends here who live in spiritual affairs are loyally devoted to the cause of justice and affection.

Mr. Baruch's Suggestions

(From a Washington Dispatch)

Mr. Baruch answered an inquiry from the senator in relation to the investigation into shoe costs which a Senate subcommittee, headed by Mr. McNary is making.

"The people have become so alarmed by what I think are unreliable statements that they have been willing to pay any price," wrote Mr. Baruch. "Another helpful thing would be to get our people to conserve and wear for a longer time their shoes and clothing. The over-all movement would be valuable. It will teach people not to be afraid of wearing clothes and shoes that are somewhat worn, frayed or patched. Old, patched clothes are evidences of courage and self-esteem. It is the people of better means who should make the effort and set the example of economy and self-control.

"It is unfortunate that the spirit of sacrifice and self-denial so prominent during the war is not more in evidence now.

"In my opinion the situation is now correcting itself.

"I have no doubt that the cost of manufacturing, handling and the sale of shoes could be very substantially reduced if the manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers would pursue substantially the course which was being pursued in 1918, and standardise and limit shape, styles, and colors, rather than unnecessarily multiplying them to appeal to the fads and fancies of a consuming public prodigal in their expenditures."

Brother Munsey's Choice

(From The Boston Post)

The greater question in this. We have had for the past seven years a conspicuous example of one-man administration of the affairs of the United States; do we want another one-man administration for four years beginning March 4, 1921?—Sun and New York Herald.

We don't know exactly. It all depends on circumstances. Abraham Lincoln's was a "one-man administration," and it now seems to have been rather good. Theodore Roosevelt's was decidedly a one-man administration and it may not be impolite to recall the fact that the present owner of the Sun was so fond of it that he wanted the colonel to have a third term.

Our esteemed brother doubtless thinks that a one-man administration is all right when it is republican, but all wrong when it is democratic.

The Stuff Of Imagination In English Prose

Mr. E. R. Osborn, whose writing so often adorns the pages of the Morning Post, has a fascinating article on English Prose which contains some appetising quotations and an examination paper.

"The best English prose is unsurpassed for power and majesty and for the just use of imagery at moments when, to finish some high argument, thought must become a 'kind of emotion,'" he writes. "It may be patriotism, that quality so much derided in these years of indecision, which has compelled me to believe that, partly because of the last-named characteristic, there is more of the stuff of imagination in English prose than in all the poetry of any other great language of the world's literature.

LITERATURE AND THE BIBLE

"And this advantage which our great prose-writers have over their alien rivals is due, in my judgment, to the possession of our open Bible—the noblest literary heirloom which any people, ancient or modern, has ever had as a model for the form and matter of self-expression. Century after century, consciously or unconsciously, we English have been profoundly impressed by the remembrance of the manifold and fearful judgments, always set forth in language as awe-inspiring, which, as Donne said, 'swell in every chapter, and blow in every verse, and thunder in every line of every book of the Bible.'

PROSE AT ITS LOFTIEST

"Whence it follows that English prose at its loftiest is always in a sense Scriptural—and never more so than when a Gibbon or a Huxley attacks the Scriptures! —not only in its solemn intonation but also in its love of the picture-epigrams which are parables told in a lightning flash. For a hundred reverent students of English poetry there is hardly one of English prose. Few, indeed, of us act on the advice of Keats to read 'on a certain day' a page of 'distilled Prose' and then muse upon it until, if ever, its message is exhausted for the moment.

"The following brief passages, often single sentences, which yet convey the peculiar and personal accent of each writer, are selected for this purpose of inspired reflection. They also form an examination paper which the reader can use to test his knowledge of the felicities of English prose during four centuries.

WHO SAYS THIS?

"(1) 'To watch the corn grow, and the blossoms set; to draw hard breath over ploughshare or spade; to read, to think, to love, to hope, to pray—these are the things that make men happy.'

"(2) 'We think our civilisation near its meridian, but we are yet only at the cock-crowing and the morning star.'

"(3) 'There is a sublimity to welcome me home—the roaring of the wind is my wife, and the Stars through the window panes are my Children.'

"(4) 'These fringes of lamplight, struggling up through smoke and thousandfold exhalation, some fathoms into the ancient reign of Night, what thinks Bootes of them, as he leads his Hunting-Dogs over the Zenith in their leash of sidereal fire?'

"(5) 'Poetry is the record of the best and happiest moments of the happiest and best minds . . . Poetry redeems from decay the visitations of the divinity in man.

"(6) 'He tells the proud and insolent that they are but abjects, and humbles them at the instant: makes them cry, complain, and repent, yea, even to hate, their forepassed happiness. He takes the account of the rich, and proves him a beggar; a naked beggar, which hath interest in nothing but in the gravel that fills his mouth.'

WHAT SOLITUDE IS

"(7) 'But little do men perceive what Solitude is, and how far it extendeth. For a crowd is not company, and faces are but a gallery of pictures, and talk but a tinkling cymbal where there is no love.'

"(8) 'I am in love with this green earth; the face of town and country, the unspeakable rural solitudes, and the sweet security of streets.'

"(9) 'Like God, whose servants they are, they utter their pleasure not by sounds that perish, or by words that go astray, but by signs in heaven, by changes on earth, by pulses in secret rivers, heraldries painted on darkness, and hieroglyphics written on the tablets of the brain.'

"(10) 'I am not very fond of Milton, but I admit that he does at times put me in mind of Fleet Street.'

"(11) 'Forgetful now and set free for ever from all faults and foes, he passed through the doorway of no ignoble death out of reach of time, out of sight of love, out of hearing of hatred, beyond the blame of England and the praise of Greece.'

"(12) 'They are Creatures that have not so much of a body as flash is, as froth is, as a vapour is, as a sigh is; and yet with a touch they shall moulder a rock into less atoms than the sand that it stands upon, and a millstone into smaller flour than it grinds.'

"(13) 'He doth not worship the Sun, because 'tis not peculiar to us, it rambles about the world, and is less kind to us than others; but for the earth of England, though perhaps inferior to that of many places abroad, to him there is divinity in it, and he would rather die than see a spire of English grass trampled down by a foreign trespasser.'

THE WORLD WAS MINE

"(14) 'The city seemed to stand in Eden or to be built in Heaven. The streets were mine, the temple was mine, the people were mine, their clothes and gold and silver were mine, as much as their sparkling eyes, fair skins, and ruddy faces. The skies were mine, and so were the sun and moon and stars; and all the World was mine, and I the only spectator and enjoyer of it.'

"(15) 'I consider woman as a beautiful romantic animal, that may be adorned with furs and feathers, pearls and diamonds, ores and silks. The lynx shall cast its skin at her feet to make her a tippet; the peacock, parrot, and swan shall pay contributions to her muff; the sea shall be searched for shells, and the rocks for gems, and every part of nature furnish out its share towards the embellishment of a creature that is the most consummate work of it.'

"(16) 'And if a man consider the original of this great ecclesiastical dominion, he will easily preceive that the Papacy is no other that the ghost of the deceased Roman Empire sitting crowned upon the grave thereof.'

"(17) 'The whisperer wounds thee, and with a stilletta of gold he strangles thee with scarves of silk, he smothers thee with the down of phoenixes, he stifles thee with a perfume of amber.'

"(18) 'I have protracted my work till most of those whom I wished to please have sunk into the grave, and success and miscarriage are empty sounds: I therefore dismiss it with frigid tranquility, having little to fear or hope from censure or from praise.'

THE HEAVIEST STONE

"(19) 'It is the heaviest stone Melancholy can throw at a man, to tell him he is at the end of his nature.'

"(20) 'Joy and sorrow in this world pass into each other, mingling their forms and their murmurs in the twilight of life as mysterious as an overshadowed ocean, while the dazzling brightness of supreme hopes lies far off, fascinating and still, on the distant edge of the horizon.'

"(21) 'Man will go down into the pit, and all his thoughts will perish. The uneasy consciousness, which in this obscure corner has for a brief space broken the contented silence of the universe, will be at rest. Matter will know itself no longer. "Imperishable monuments" and "immortal deeds," death itself and love stronger than death, will be as though they had never been.'

Do You Know That—

Wordsworth, who succeeded Southey as English laureate, held the unique honor of being the only poet to the Crown who never wrote an ode in his official capacity. He was also the most elderly poet to receive such an appointment.

* * *

Peter the Hermit was a Frenchman, born at Amiens.

* * *

We are told that one lighted gas jet consumes as much air as four adults.

* * *

* * *

Thimbles are becoming scarce since they were principally made in Lille, Nuremberg and Vienna.

In Drab Street Of Any Town

"In Drab Street of Any Town
There ain't much room for kids to play;
The grown-ups go up and down,
In Drab Street of Any Town;
They're thickest by the 'Rose and Crown';
They curse you if you're in their way.
In Drab Street of Any Town
There ain't much room for kids to play."

"Keep off the grass; don't pick the flowers.'
Well now, I do call that a shame!
I allus thought the Park was ours.
Keep off the grass; don't pick the flowers';
We can't play much at Fairy Bowers,
Or Robinson and What's-his name.
'Keep off the grass; don't pick the flowers';
Well now, I do call that a shame!"

—H. F. KNIGHT,
in the Woman's Leader.

A Spring Song

The crocus rears its golden head,
To lap the morning dew.
(And with it soars the cost of bread,
And golden butter, too.)
Pale primrose petals light the brake
And ring the birchen bole;
Snowdrops arise (and so does cake
And paraffin and coal).
See where the hedgerow gleams afar
With myriad springing shoots;
(So rise the taxes on my car,
The cost of clothes and boots).

—A. W., in the London Daily Chronicle.

POLISH FIGHTING FORCE IS NOW PUT AT 700,000 MEN

In First Six Months 300,000 Volunteered For Service Under Gen. Pilsudki

Washington, May 8.—Poland's army has jumped from nothing at all at the time the armistice was signed to a well-organised fighting force now battering at the gates of Kieff and threatening Bolshevist military supremacy in Russia. American military observers regard it as an amazing development of after-the-war fighting.

Less than two years ago Poland was from a military point of view non-existent. There was no Polish government, no centralised authority, no army and no way of raising an army. Today, Poland, according to Major Gen. Sigismund Brynk, Military Attache of the Polish Legation, has a fighting force of more than 700,000 men, and is maintaining a front greater than the Franco-German front during the war.

"At the time of the collapse of the Central Empires," he said today, "Poland, without a government, devastated by the invading armies in the intense fighting of the preceding four years, faced two foes. On the one side were the Germans, determined to keep their grip on as much of the country as they could. On the other were the Bolsheviki, who, aided by the Germans, were gradually pushing their way westward. Besides, from the southeast the Ukrainians were pushing their way upward, and the Czecho-Slovaks were reaching out for the mineral districts of Galicia.

"At the time of the signing of the armistice the Germans held Warsaw, Riga and the shores of the Baltic. No sooner had they begun their retirement than the Bolsheviki, loosely organised forces devoting themselves largely to pillage, advanced, taking Vilna. On all sides Poland was hemmed in by antagonists. It was a country as the saying went at the time, without frontiers but with fronts.

"Then the task of establishing a military force to defend the country and maintain order was taken up. Voluntarily the fighting men of the country, most of whom had been drafted in the Russian, German or Austrian armies, came to the newly hoisted Polish colors. The secret military organisation built up by General Pilsudski served as a nucleus. The military forces and equipment abandoned by the retreating armies were seized and a cohesive force created.

"When, in November, 1918, Pilsudski returned to Warsaw from Germany, where he had been confined, he was called upon to act as Chief of State, and immediately after his appointment he issued a proclamation to the Polish people in which he asked for volunteers for the Polish army. The patriotism was so great, and Pilsudski's name worshipped by the younger generation that in April, 1919, the Polish Army numbered approximately 300,000 soldiers.

"Soldiers of Polish birth who at that time were in the Austrian, German and Russian armies joined this volunteer organisation. It was imperative that the army be organised with the greatest speed possible, because of the danger that confronted Poland from two sides—the Bolsheviki and the Germans. Up to February of 1920, when a Parliment came into existence, this army was one composed entirely of volunteers. Then Parliament passed a law of compulsory service and called to the colors men between the ages of 20 and 25 years. This marked the beginning of a regular Polish army.

"Polish legions, the German, Austrian and Russian armies contributed a great number of experienced officers, and in April, 1919, the formation of a military school for officers was begun. At the same time the establishment of an aviation school was in progress, and in this last mentioned undertaking great assistance was received from American aviators who formed the Koszciusko Squadron, and also participated in the last battles on the Ukrainian front against the Bolsheviki.

"In many parts of Poland, however, the people were compelled to fight their own battles. Not only men but women and boys took up arms under the leadership of patriotic Poles and repelled the invaders. One notable case of this was the defense of Lvov, where the women and high school boys fought valiantly.

"Up to March, 1919, the fighting was carried on exclusively by volunteers. In that month, the Government having been hastily established in the meantime, the draft law was proclaimed. It became effective the following month. All this time fighting was going on with the Germans, who reluctantly gave up Polish territory that had been incorporated in the Prussian Empire. To Posnania especially they clung tenaciously. Gradually the Germans were forced out, returning to East and West Prussia, and Polish authority was set up and maintained in Polish territory.

"Fortunately the Bolsheviki at this time were fighting with Kolchak and Denikin and were not in a position to force the fighting on their western front. Vilna was retaken by General Pilsudski in April, 1919. The next offensive in July forced the Bolsheviki east of Minsk. In December the joint drive of the Poles and Letts cleared the Baltic region. At length the line, as it stands at present, was established in the north. In the south it faced territory held by General Denikin. At one time his forces and the Poles were in contact.

"While the attention of the Bolsheviki was diverted by the Kolchak and Denikin drives, Poland converted its army into a thoroughly trained fighting force. It now had a Government behind it and the patriotism of the people was such that there was no lack of valor. Of supplies and ammunition it was badly in need. The allied Governments being no longer at war had sent some supplies. Some equipment was purchased from the United States.

"The fighting line is now established to the east of the frontier tentatively fixed by the peace conference.

General Pilsudski, by seizing the bridge crossing the Pripet severed the Bolshevist's line of lateral communication. Next the attack in the direction of Kiev was launched. This is now in progress. For the moment, at least, the Bolshevist menace is checked. But it has not been eliminated."

Americans Invest In German Company

Financiers Buy 25,000,000-Mark Block Of Stock In Electric Concern

Berlin, May 8.—Dr. Walter Rathenau, President of the German General Electric Company, astonished the shareholders of that organisation today by the announcement that a group of prominent American financiers had bought a 25,000,000-mark block of new shares, part of the 100,000,000 marks increase in the capital stock. The announcement was a surprise, although President Rathenau said negotiations began several months ago.

The Americans will pay on the basis of the prevailing exchange. They voluntarily consented to restrict the voting power in connection with their stock and agreed that the block shall remain intact under the surveillance of a committee of three, two of whom will be Germans selected by the general electors and the third an American.

Dr. Rathenau stated that the protective measure had been adopted to prevent American or other foreign interests from gaining ascendancy in the company's affairs.

Discussing the present economic situation, he told the shareholders that the company was amply supplied with raw materials and that the employes generally were showing an inclination to work uninterruptedly.

The company's affairs, according to President Rathenau, were to a large extent influenced by the internal and external political situation. "The chief menace," he added, "is found in the fact that politics of passion still dominate ceremony, which was witnessed by the world at large."
